Yorkshire celebrates business brilliance at the launch of the Business Power Awards

The prestigious launch event welcomed high-profile keynote speakers including Dr. Zulf Karim DL, former High Sheriff of West Yorkshire, and Dr. Hanif Malik OBE, who delivered rousing keynotes echoing the importance of recognising the economic impact of ethnic minority businesses (EMBs) and nurturing inclusive enterprise.

Drawing on decades of insight, storytelling, and support for small and medium-sized enterprises (SMEs) within the newspaper's 'Business Power' staple editorial section, Asian Express is now stepping into the limelight as a full-fledged awards platform and movement.

A legacy reborn: From the Asian Business Development Network to a new power collective Speaking at the event, Dr Hanif Malik OBE said: "The Business Power Awards have been founded by Nadim and Andleeb Hanif, the powerhouse duo behind the Asian Express.

"Their newspaper has chronicled over 5,000 business success stories through its Business Power section - offering a unique lens on entrepreneurialism that is inclusive, community-rooted, and unapologetically ambitious.

"The awards recognise that business is more than bottom lines - it's about equity, diversity, representation, and resilience. It's about celebrating those breaking glass ceilings, creating jobs, leading with purpose, and inspiring future generations."

Business Power Awards have been inspired by the legacy of the late Arshad Chaudhry's Asian Business Development Network (ABDN), a brand acquired by Nadim Hanif.

ABDN still resonates as playing a crucial role in mentoring and spotlighting minority-led businesses in the early 2000s. The Business Power Awards represents a modern evolution of that same mission: recognising those who are building businesses that change lives, shape neighbourhoods, and shift narratives.

Celebrating local brilliance, fuelling national growth

Andleeb Hanif, Founding Partner and Managing Editor of Asian Express says: "At its core, the Business Power Awards are more than just a trophy and a title. They serve as a platform for sharing stories, inspiring others towards economic empowerment, and is celebration of the diverse entrepreneurs driving growth from the grassroots up.

"The UK government has repeatedly emphasised the pivotal role of SMEs and ethnic minority businesses (EMBs) in delivering the nation's economic growth strategy. And, nowhere is this more evident than in Yorkshire - a region whose rich entrepreneurial spirit continues to thrive in sectors as diverse as tech, retail, manufacturing, property, and the creative industries.

"I'm a firm believer of sharing stories of challenges overcome, so that it may inspire others that they too can overcome their personal challenges in order to achieve their ambitions. The Business Power Awards aim to do just that: offer a national platform to share the incredible stories of our regions diverse businesses and unique individuals, and play our part in encouraging the transformation of potential into performance."

According to Aston University's CREME report, endorsed by the Mayor of West Yorkshire, Tracy Brabin, EMBs contribute an astonishing £25 billion annually to the UK economy, with the potential to quadruple that figure to £100 billion over the next decade if given the right visibility, support, and investment.

What's Next:

A Movement in Motion

Nadim Hanif, CEO Asian Express said: "Today's launch marks the beginning of a year filled with networking events, skill-building workshops, and two major black-tie awards evenings, celebrating the very best of Yorkshire's business scene.

"Yorkshire is already a powerhouse of entrepreneurial energy - we're simply giving it the stage it deserves.

"Working with our key partners, our agenda is to play our role in helping push the power of entrepreneurialism to transform communities and fuel national prosperity.

"Both the 'Empowering Women Awards', and the 'Business Power Awards', serve more than recognition - it's a rallying cry to build, innovate, and rise together.

"We'd like to extend our gratitude to our partners, sponsors, supporters and attendees, who attended the launch, supported the vision, and joined the movement. The Business Power Awards invites more organisations, partners, and business leaders to get involved.

"Together, we can build a future where diverse entrepreneurship is the cornerstone of economic growth, not the exception. Join the Power Collective. Celebrate bold ambition. Be part of the Business Power Movement."

Nazim Ali annihilates £55,000 goal, raising over £84,000 in Ramadan running challenge

Raising over £84,000 for families in Africa, local humanitarian and community activist Nazim Ali completed his 12th Annual Ramadan 10K Run in the heart of Bradford - this year's designated UK City of Culture - while fasting for nearly 16 hours.

The annual challenge is not just a feat of endurance, but a powerful fundraising campaign for some of the world's most vulnerable.

The route began on Sunday 23rd March at 10 a.m., passing through Frizinghall, Shipley, Saltaire, Cottingley, and Bingley, and concluded at the iconic Lister Park.

Despite recent illness, a persistent hamstring strain, and a foot injury, Mr. Ali completed the run non-stop in 1 hour, 10 minutes, and 21 seconds—although he ended up covering 11.3 kilometres, more than the standard 10K distance.

This year's run is supporting the Nazim Ali Foundation, in partnership with Green Crescent Aid UK, to raise funds for the Burundi New Homes Project.

The campaign aims to construct 25 new homes for families living in extreme poverty in Burundi, East Africa. These families - many of whom are widows, orphans, elderly, or disabled - currently live in fragile, makeshift shelters that offer little protection from harsh weather.

Each two-room home, complete with a kitchen and bathroom, costs just £2,200, with Zakat eligibility and a 100% donation policy. Thanks to widespread support, Nazim has smashed his £55,000 target, raising over £84,000, enough to build more than 38 homes.

"I was running on empty - injured, fasting, and tired - but I couldn't let these families down," said Nazim AKA 'The Ramadan Runner'.

"There's a long way to go, but we're changing lives one home at a time."

Nazim Ali is no stranger to charity. Over the last 13 years, he has raised a whopping £1 million for causes at home and abroad. His previous Ramadan 10K runs alone have raised over £426,000, funding everything from house-building in Malawi, Uganda, Syria, Pakistan, and Afghanistan, to live goat distributions, school upgrades, and medical aid.

When not fundraising, Nazim works full-time as a Careers Adviser in three inner-city schools, and leads multiple community initiatives through the Nazim Ali Foundation. These include the Khidma Community Kitchen, which provides weekly hot meals to the homeless and vulnerable in Bradford, and the Creating Smiles Gifts Initiative, through which he has personally visited children's wards over 45 times to distribute toys and gifts.

"I always say: my charity work is powered by the people," he added. "It's the donors, the supporters, the volunteers - this is a collective mission. And together, we're making real, lasting change."

Nazim Ali Foundation's Eid Gifts for Airedale Hospital Children

In celebration of Eid-ul-Fitr, the Nazim Ali Foundation donated over 30 gifts to Airedale Hospital's Children's Ward. This marks the 12th Annual 'Creating Smiles Gifts Initiative, which aims to bring joy to poorly children during their hospital stays. Nazim Ali, inspired by the teachings of Prophet

Muhammad (PBUH), has been running this initiative for 12 years, with support from Saveco Cash & Carry and his brother Yasir Ali. The gifts, including cuddly toys and playsets, are meant to uplift the spirits of children aged 0 to 16. Nazim, who personally understands the impact of hospital stays from his childhood battle with TB, has distributed thousands of pounds worth of gifts to hospitals over the years. This year's donation brings the total to 46 hospital visits. Shiraz and Fairaz Ahmed, managing directors of Saveco Cash & Carry, expressed their joy in supporting the initiative, which aligns with their corporate social responsibility efforts.

Women, let's put our health first. Attending your breast screening appointment could save your life.

We are more than just individuals—we are a powerful community of mothers, daughters, sisters, and friends, intertwined in a shared journey of life. In the hustle and bustle of our daily lives, it's easy to forget the importance of prioritising our health. But together, we can stand strong, support one another, and put our health first.

Breast cancer is one of the most common types of cancer in the UK, and the chance of getting it increases as you get older. But here's the good news: regular breast screening is a crucial weapon in our arsenal against this disease. It can detect cancer at an early stage—often before you can see or feel it—saving around 1,300 lives each year in the UK. This isn't just a statistic; it can be the difference between treatment and heartbreak for families and friends.

That's why the NHS's latest campaign is calling on every woman to take action and attend her breast screening when invited. If you've received an invitation letter now is the time to prioritise yourself and encourage those around you to do the same.

Talking about cancer can be tough.

A recent NHS survey revealed that 42% of South Asian women rarely discuss breast screening with those who matter most. But it's crucial we break the silence. We owe it to ourselves and each other to share our fears and prioritise our health.

The survey found that the majority of us (70%) are concerned about potentially developing breast cancer. Despite this worry, the latest NHS data shows that around a third of those invited don't attend screening – which increases to 46.3 per cent of those invited for the first time.

The survey also found that one in three (31%) South Asian women over 50 admitted they would put off attending 'non-urgent' health appointments - like breast screening.

We lead busy lives and often think health checks can wait, but early detection is key. Breast screening can find cancer long before any symptoms appear, giving you peace of mind. If any signs of cancer are found, detecting it early can make it more likely that treatment will be successful.

Dr. Farzana Hussain says, "A lot of us worry about going to our breast screening because we don't want to find out we have cancer. Most women who attend their breast screening will not have cancer, but in cases where signs of cancer are found and it's diagnosed early, it's more likely that treatment will be successful."

"There can also be concerns around undressing at the appointment, or perhaps needing someone to translate what's going on for you. The specialist who does your breast screening – the mammographer – will always be female, and you can also ask if there is the option for interpreting services. The actual screening is quick and straightforward— it takes about 30 minutes. You'll get two X-rays for each breast, and your results will arrive in the post within two weeks."

"If your results show no sign of breast cancer, you'll be invited in the next three years for your next screening. If further tests are needed, you'll receive guidance on the next steps. Most who need extra tests don't have cancer, but early detection is vital for effective treatment."

To support this campaign, the NHS has launched a powerful film featuring everyday women sharing their breast screening stories— highlighting shared anxieties and empowering us all to make breast screening a routine part of our lives.

For those women who say they wouldn't attend a breast screening, 21% are held back by embarrassment, while 24% believe they don't need to go unless they have symptoms.

But as Kajal Kaj from the film emphasises: "Every woman over 50 should attend. It's not just about having symptoms; it's about diagnosing cancer at the earliest stage when it's more treatable. Get your friends or family involved when your invitation arrives; talk it through, and make sure you go—it can be lifesaving."

All women registered with a GP will receive an invitation for breast screening every three years between the ages of 50 to 71. Your first invite will come in the post between age 50 and 53. Even if your breast screening shows no sign of breast cancer, it's important to check your breasts between mammograms and contact your GP practice if you notice any changes.

So remember, when you're invited: Save the date, it could save your life!

Dr Farzana Hussain says: "Most women who attend their breast screening will not have cancer, but in cases where signs of cancer are found and it's diagnosed early, it's more likely that treatment will be successful."

Kajal Kaj encourages every woman over 50 to attend a breast screening appointment

Two teenagers convicted over killing 80-year-old - they laughed while kicking, punching and slapping him

'Utterly disgusting'

Bhim Kohli, who was fatally attacked while walking his dog in a local park, in a case that has shocked the East Midlands community.

The incident occurred on the evening of 2 September in Franklin Park, just a short distance from Mr Kohli's home.

The 15-year-old boy and 13-year-old girl, whose identities are protected due to their age, approached Mr Kohli after the boy was told - falsely - that the elderly man had previously struck another youth with a stick.

The boy became aggressive, donning a balaclava before launching a physical assault on Mr Kohli, who was verbally abused, punched, and kicked to the ground.

The girl remained nearby and filmed parts of the attack on her phone.

The footage, later recovered by police, showed Mr Kohli on his knees being slapped in the face with a shoe.

The violence was so severe that he fractured three of Mr Kohli's ribs and neck which caused trauma to his spinal column.

After fleeing the scene, the teenagers left Mr Kohli lying on the grass. His grandson discovered him minutes later, and other family members quickly arrived.

Paramedics were called, and Mr Kohli told officers he had been assaulted by a young male who had also made a racist remark.

Mr Kohli was taken to hospital, but tragically died the following day. A post-mortem revealed he had suffered a fatal neck injury that caused trauma to the spinal cord, along with three broken ribs—injuries consistent with a violent assault.

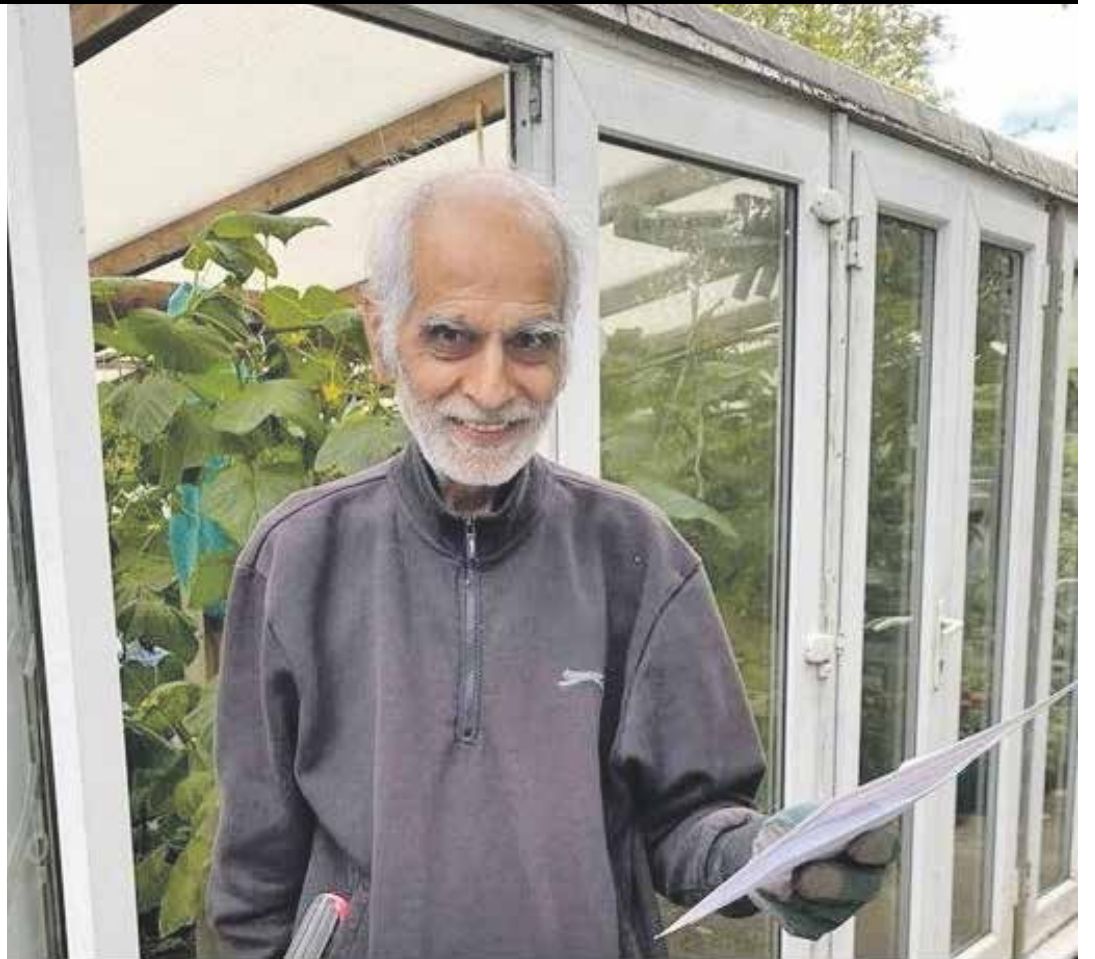

A police investigation was launched immediately. CCTV footage, eyewitness accounts, and mobile phone evidence led to the arrest of the five teenagers present in the park. Three were released without charge. The boy was charged with murder, and the girl was later charged with manslaughter after investigators found the video footage on her phone.

During the trial, the boy attempted to justify the attack by falsely claiming Mr Kohli had pulled a knife and struck a girl. The jury found these claims untrue, and both teenagers were convicted.

Detective Chief Inspector Mark Sinski, from the East Midlands Special Operations Unit, described the case as "truly tragic and heartbreaking."

"Bhim Kohli was simply doing what he did every day – walking his dog. Instead, he was met with aggression and violence that ultimately cost him his life," he said.

"His loss has left a family grieving and a community in mourning."

The Great Adventure Build brought creativity and joy to hundreds as part of Bradford 2025's PLAY programme

Over five action-packed days from April 5 to 9, Wibsey Park was transformed into a vibrant hub of imagination and construction during The Great Adventure Build, an interactive event that saw children designing and building their own playgrounds using real tools and plenty of creativity.

Commissioned by Bradford 2025 UK City of Culture as part of its year-long PLAY programme, the initiative encouraged children to take the lead, with support from trained onsite teams.

Young participants, some as young as four, used hammers, saws, and nails (with safety and supervision) to shape a continually evolving wooden play structure.

The event kicked off with two days dedicated to school and SEND learners, including home-educated children, before opening to the public.

Throughout the event, hundreds of children engaged in hands-on construction or simply enjoyed the joy of playing on the ever-changing creation.

Rhiannon Hannon, Director of Creative Engagement and Participation at Bradford 2025, praised the event's success: "The Great Adventure Build was a fantastic reminder of the power of play. Seeing children take the lead in designing and building their own playgrounds brought so much energy to Wibsey Park. We're proud to have provided a space where imagination and creativity could thrive."

A highlight of the event was the Regulation Station, a specially designed area offering sensory toys, quiet spaces, and supportive resources — ensuring that children with additional needs could fully participate and feel welcome.

The Great Adventure Build follows the earlier success of GRUE, an immersive winter wonderland at Damart Mill, and is one of many playful interventions planned as part of Bradford 2025's commitment to celebrating creativity across the district.

For those who missed it, The Great Adventure Build will return this summer in Ladyhill Park, running from August 11 to 17.

Landmark race equality conference unites campaigners

Over 250 campaigners, activists, and community leaders gathered at the University of Bradford, for the Northern Race Equality Conference (NREC25) - a major milestone in the collective fight for racial justice across the North of England.

Hosted by the Race Equality Network (REN) in partnership with the Ella Baker School of Organising and Inclusive North, the one-day event on Wednesday, 9 April 2025, brought together a powerful coalition of voices committed to tackling systemic inequality and building solidarity.

Themed around advancing racial justice and fostering connections, NREC25 featured an array of sessions exploring pressing issues, including race and the asylum system, influencing public policy, trade union activism, grassroots organising, and community movement building.

Bradford West MP Naz Shah, a vocal advocate for racial justice, delivered the keynote speech. Speaking in her home constituency, Shah called the conference “a vital space for connection and change” and highlighted the urgent need to address racial inequality in today’s political climate.

“We must continue to stand together to ensure racial justice is not a side issue but a priority. Conferences like this build the relationships and ideas that can drive real progress,” she said.

REN CEO Humma Nizami described the conference as a “milestone moment” marking the organisation’s 25th anniversary.

“Bradford’s cultural and ethnic diversity made it the perfect setting for this powerful gathering. It was more than just a conference - it was an opportunity to build long-lasting partnerships and strengthen our shared commitment to racial equity,” Nizami commented.

Key contributions came from leading national organisations including Refugee Action, Runnymede Trust, Prevent Watch, Voice4Change England, Greater Manchester Immigration Aid Unit, MEND, and the TUC, all of whom played vital roles in shaping the agenda.

“NREC25 wasn’t just a conference - it was a call for courage, compassion, and action,” said Naz Zaman of Inclusive North.

“There was so much knowledge, support and energy in the room - it was amazing,” added John Page from the Ella Baker School of Organising.

Looking ahead, REN is developing a National Racial Justice Policy Forum, an Anti-Racist Strategy for Bradford, and expanding its work with over 80 partner organisations to challenge racism at every level.

“The energy at NREC25 was incredible,” said Fatima Mahmood, REN’s Projects and Communications Officer. “The conversations were transformative, and we’re committed to building on this momentum to achieve a future grounded in justice and hope.”

REN, the Ella Baker School of Organising, and Inclusive North extended their gratitude to MP Naz Shah, the University of Bradford, MyLahore, and the dedicated volunteers, facilitators, and sponsors who made the event a success.

Award-winning author brings hilarious new series perfect for young animal lovers

From the award-winning author of Anisha, Accidental Detective, Serena Patel, and talented illustrator Emma McCann, comes a heartwarming and hilarious new series perfect for young animal lovers!

'Pia's Pet Club: Puppy Problem' is the first installment in a lively, pet-filled adventure that celebrates friendship, community, and South Asian heritage.

Inspired by her own upbringing, being raised in a South Asian household where having pets was not a norm, Serena's book follows the story of Pia who is determined to prove to her parents that she is responsible enough to have a pet.

Pia loves pets, but no matter how much she begs her parents for one, the answer is always 'NO'!

Determined to prove she's responsible enough, she takes on the challenge of helping her friend Hari train his mischievous puppy, Luna. But when Luna's antics spiral into total chaos, Pia realises she'll need more than just determination, she'll need a Pet Club!

Pia's Pet Club introduces a vibrant, multicultural cast of characters from a range of family backgrounds, reflecting the beautifully diverse world children grow up in today.

The author's storytelling is rooted in her belief that all children deserve to feel seen in the stories they read. Set in a communal garden of an apartment block, the story highlights the power of friendship, teamwork, and community spirit.

At the centre of it all are the rich South Asian cultural elements that are woven seamlessly into the story, from home-cooked meals and lively family gatherings to familiar South Asian words, and the importance of respect and responsibility, making her journey relatable for all readers while celebrating diverse cultures.

Serena Patel says "It's so powerful for children to see themselves in books. It's also important for children to see someone who is different to them as the hero of the story and learn about the experiences of others."

"Books as mirrors and windows are a brilliant tool for empathy and learning as well as being joyful and wonderful to read."

Serena Patel is the award-winning author of the Anisha, Accidental Detective series, which has won the Sainsbury's Children's Book Award for Fiction and the Week Junior Book Award for Children's Book of the Year. Serena's previous book series 'Anisha, Accidental Detective' is in development for TV with Emmy Award-Winning actress, Archie Panjabi as executive producer.

An advertisement for 'Fly Me High'. It features a woman with long dark hair, wearing sunglasses and a black leather jacket over a white shirt. She is holding a large yellow suitcase and a stack of papers. The background is a light blue with white geometric patterns. The text 'FLY ME HIGH' is written in large, bold, teal letters across the center. Below it, the website 'www.flymehigh.co.uk' is displayed. In the bottom left corner, there is a circular call to action with the text 'FREE HOTEL STAY in Dubai, Istanbul, Doha or Abu-Dhabi when you book a long stopover with us on participating airlines. Qatar Airways, Emirates, Etihad &amp; Turkish Airlines.' A yellow button with the text 'Book Now' is located at the bottom center.

Spreading Eid joy: Gift boxes for young patients at Bradford Royal Infirmary

Children spending Eid in hospital received a special surprise ahead of Eid, thanks to a generous donation of Eid gift boxes from local charity.

The My Family Group charity partnered with Bradford Hospitals Charity to brighten the spirits of children being cared for on the hospital's children's wards during the Eid celebrations.

Packed with thoughtful activities and toys, the Eid gift boxes were specially put together to help young patients mark the end of Ramadan and feel part of the festivities, despite being in hospital.

Laura Riach, Charity Director at Bradford Hospitals Charity, said: "We're incredibly grateful to My Family Group for their kindness and generosity in donating these wonderful Eid gift boxes."

"Spending time in hospital is tough for children and their families, especially during special occasions like Eid. This donation will help bring a little joy and comfort to our young patients and make them feel part of the celebrations."

Aliyah Hussain, from My Family Group, added: "Eid is a time of giving, togetherness and community, and we wanted to share that spirit with children who can't be at home to celebrate."

"It's a privilege to work with Bradford Teaching Hospitals and support families during what we know can be a challenging time."

Empowering children for their protection from sexual abuse

A University of Bradford academic is leading efforts to empower vulnerable children in Pakistan through a unique blend of research, performance, and community engagement.

Dr Samina Karim, Associate Professor of Social Work, recently organised a series of inclusive public events in Islamabad, Rawalpindi, and Kasur – the three districts in Pakistan with the highest reported rates of child sexual abuse (CSA).

These events, which attracted over 1,500 attendees, aimed to shift the narrative from protection for children to protection with children.

“By fostering open dialogue and encouraging creative self-expression, we are helping children find their voice, share their experiences, and take part in the movement to improve child protection in their communities.”

“By fostering open dialogue and encouraging creative self-expression, we are helping children find their voice, share their experiences, and take part in the movement to improve child protection in their communities,” said Dr Karim.

The events were inspired by Dr Karim’s research, which draws on over 110 interviews with CSA survivors and explores how power imbalances in society make children vulnerable. Her approach transforms research into real-world impact by offering children a platform to express themselves through drama, poetry, painting, and martial arts.

Hosting the events in open, public spaces ensured accessibility, transparency, and visibility – helping to build trust and strengthen local child protection networks. Community members, including parents, teachers, social workers, and local officials, pledged their support to ongoing child safeguarding efforts.

Dr Karim, who previously worked as a social work practitioner, holds a PhD on institutional power and child abuse. She was awarded a prestigious UK Research and Innovation (UKRI) Future Leaders Fellowship in 2022, securing around £1 million in funding to explore CSA among children of Pakistani backgrounds in both the UK and Pakistan.

This work forms part of the University of Bradford’s wider mission to challenge inequality and deliver lasting change, from tackling child protection to improving maternal health and amplifying the voices of those most affected by climate change.

As Dr Karim explains, “Empowering children is a powerful tool for change. It transforms them from passive subjects into active agents in their own protection.”

Following the success of the recent events, further engagement activities are planned for the 2026–27 academic year, continuing to bridge the gap between research and real-world impact.

When To Apply For Adverse Possession

The phrase “squatters’ rights” is one that is often banded about in the media when talking about adverse possession but what is adverse possession? Adverse possession is a process whereby a party who is not the legal owner of the land can acquire title to it by being in exclusive possession of the land for a period of time. The rules governing adverse possession differ depending on whether the land is registered or unregistered. For registered land the person claiming adverse possession has to prove that they have had uninterrupted possession of the land for a period of 10 years and for unregistered land it is for a period of 12 years and in both cases there must be an intention to possess the land during this period.

The Land Registration Act 2002 also introduced a requirement that the applicant reasonably believed that the land belonged to them for a period of at least 10 years. It is this requirement which was considered by the Supreme Court in the case of Brown v Ridley which has been hailed as a landmark decision.

The case concerned a strip of land which adjoined a property which Mr and Mrs Ridley had purchased in 2004. Unknown to the Ridleys the land had been fenced off by the previous owner and the title to the land was actually owned by Mr Brown, the proprietor of the neighbouring property. In October 2019, Mr and Mrs Ridley became aware that the land was owned by Mr Brown. Mr and Mrs Ridley subsequently made an application to the Land Registry for adverse possession in December 2019 on the basis that they had used, maintained and treated the land as their own since they had purchased the property. Mr Brown objected and the Land Registry referred the matter to the First-Tier Tribunal which found in favour of the Ridleys. Mr Brown appealed to the Upper Tribunal, and it overturned the decision.

Due to the importance of the case, the Ridleys were given permission to use the leapfrog procedure to appeal directly to the Supreme Court and bypass the Court of Appeal.

The issue which the Supreme Court had to determine was whether the period where the applicant reasonably believed that the land belonged to them must be a period of at least 10 years ending on the date of the application for adverse possession or whether it could be any continuous 10 year period prior to the date of the application. This point was significant because the First-Tier Tribunal had found that the Ridleys only had a reasonable belief that they owned the disputed land until February 2018, but it took them 21 months to make their application. The Supreme Court unanimously found that the 10 year period could be any time and did not specifically have to end on the making of the application. The Court recognised that at the very moment that a squatter realises that they do not own the land, their belief ceased to be reasonable which, if the rule was interpreted strictly, would mean that they would never be able to make a successful application.

This decision means that as long as an applicant has 10 years of reasonable belief at some stage during their possession they can apply for adverse possession.

It provides much needed clarity on the timing of an application for adverse possession and it removes the need for applicants to immediately lodge an application the second that they learn of a dispute; it allows parties time to negotiate to try and resolve the dispute rather than diving head-long into litigation.

From 9-5 to 5-9 Three-quarters of UK professionals eye side hustles to boost finances

As salaries continue to be stretched thin by a high cost of living and with National Insurance tax hikes placing more pressure on company budgets – many professionals are being driven to clock into a ‘5-9’ after their ‘9-5’.

HM Revenue & Customs (HMRC) are also clamping down on online sellers using sites like Etsy, eBay and Airbnb in a new campaign called Help for Hustles to encourage the tax reporting of side hustles.

New findings from global talent solutions provider Robert Walters reveal that 30% of UK professionals are considering beginning a side hustle - with almost a fifth (19%) already having some form of second job.

By a landslide, the most common reason driving professionals to pursue side hustles is ‘needing the extra income’ (75%).

Social media has helped amplify the renewed focus on professionals’ ‘optimising’ their time after work – TikTok’s 5-9 after 9-5 tag provides one such place where young professionals share their afterwork routines.

Of those who do have a second job, the Robert Walters poll found that a shocking 43% work at it virtually every day in some way, followed by 34% at least twice a week and 21% ‘whenever they have the time’.

When asked about the exact hours, a quarter (25%) state that each week could see them dedicate between 10-20 hours to their side hustle. For those also working in standard full-time roles, this could mean they clock in up to 67.5 hours of work every week.

75% of UK professionals would consider taking on a second job or ‘side hustle’ to earn additional income

Effects of juggling jobs

Some professionals report the negative side effects on their main role due to having a second job, such as less free time and lower capacity (27%) and increased burnout (13%).

On the other hand, others view side hustles more positively - as a source of motivation or inspiration (36%) and allowing them to hone transferable skills which aid them in fulfilling their main role to a better standard (24%).

Lucy Bisset, Director at Robert Walters: “The number of professionals actively pursuing side hustles, as well as those considering them, truly attests to the levels of financial instability many professionals and businesses currently face.

“Professionals must consider several factors to maximise the benefits of a side hustle – like ensuring they understand any new tax obligations and being careful to remember that the hours invested into a secondary job aren’t always proportionate to the rewards.

“Nevertheless, side hustles can greatly enhance a professional’s main role and their CV – by helping them bring in fresh ideas and perspectives, pursue a passion project as well as developing transferable skills which can improve their existing capabilities.

“The key is maintaining a balance—a side hustle should enrich your professional capacity and profile, not diminish it.”

Vacuuming

Vacuuming can be a great form of cardio, and you can burn anywhere between 200-400 calories per hour, depending on your current weight and how vigorously you are working. On average, just a quick 10-minute blitz can burn up to 60 calories!

Cleaning the Bathroom Sink and Surfaces

As your toilet becomes a breeding ground for airborne bacteria and germs, it is vital that you clean your bathroom surfaces with a disinfectant spray once a week. If you spend just 10 minutes a week cleaning and disinfecting your bathroom surfaces and sink, this could add up to a burn-off of around 200 calories in a month.

Making and Changing the Beds

Making the bed is considered a moderate-intensity activity involving movement and stretching, which contributes to calorie burn. Stripping the bed completely and putting on fresh linens will generally burn more calories than just fluffing pillows and straightening blankets. Overall, the combination of the two activities can add up to your burning the equivalent of 400 calories in an hour.

Washing Up

Washing up every day (either multiple times or one big clean in the evening) is essential. A quick 10-minute wash can easily burn 40 calories per time, but if you have a larger family and spend more time washing dishes, it could lead to you burning a ginormous 800-850 calories per week through all of that scrubbing, drying and tidying away!

Doing the Laundry

Doing the laundry is considered a moderate-intensity activity, meaning that it can make a good contribution to your overall calorie expenditure. On average, loading, unloading, sorting, and folding clothes can burn approximately 50-100 calories per hour. This number can increase based on the size of the load and how much movement is involved, such as carrying laundry baskets up and down stairs.

Dusting

All of the moving furniture and standing on tiptoes to reach those tricky corners can really pay off in terms of exercise, and you can expect to burn around 200-300 calories per hour of dusting your home.

Cleaning Windows

Cleaning the insides and outsides of windows is not one of our most regular household chores, but it will still require a fair amount of effort during the times that it is necessary. You can easily burn off 200-300 calories per hour when cleaning that pesky dirt, grease and grime from your windows.

Mowing the Lawn

Naturally, the amount of calories you will burn during this activity depends on the size of your lawn area, as the larger your lawn, the more work you will need to put in. On average, with an electric mower that requires pushing, you can expect to burn around 250-350 calories per hour while getting your lawn in shape.

Washing the Car

Washing your car is a full-body activity that can improve your coordination and endurance and increase your heart rate. Typically, cleaning the exterior of your car alone by hand can lead to you burning around 250-300 calories per hour – add to that vacuuming and cleaning the interior and it can be a great exercise activity!

Which household chores burn the most calories?

Whilst they shouldn't be a replacement for regular exercise and more vigorous activity, household chores can help you to avoid the ill effects of a sedentary lifestyle and even aid in weight loss. Some tasks are considered light to moderate exercise, whilst others can even equate to a full workout!

Kitchen revamping hacks that won't break the bank

With the average cost of a fully bespoke kitchen renovation setting homeowners back upwards of £35,000, it's no wonder that more people than ever are on the hunt for cost-effective and practical kitchen updates they can tackle on a budget.

In the era of trending hashtags like #homehacks and #lifehacks on platforms like TikTok, it's easier than ever to find creative solutions.

But how do you know which hacks are worth the cost and time investment? Here are the top kitchen renovation hacks that won't break the bank – or your patience!

1. Island investment

One of the most impactful changes you can make to your kitchen without blowing your budget is by adding a freestanding kitchen island. Instead of shelling out a hefty sum to update your entire kitchen cabinetry, consider investing in a standalone island. From butcher's blocks to larger, eye-catching units that can comfortably seat four adults, these islands not only add a stylish touch but also create a cohesive feel in the space. By introducing a central gathering point, you'll encourage more socialising while enhancing the functionality of your kitchen – providing a hub for the whole family, whether that looks like the kids doing their homework whilst you prepare dinner, or simply a spot for reading the Sunday papers with a cup of coffee. Plus, the flexibility of a freestanding island allows for easy rearrangement if you decide to change your kitchen layout in the future.

Top Tip: Opt for an island in a complementary tone, rather than in the same colour as your wall units. Not only will this add a stylish element to the kitchen space, but it will also save the headache of trying to colour match all of your units!

2. A bright idea

Often overlooked but incredibly effective, adding under-unit lighting can completely transform the ambiance of your kitchen. This inexpensive addition brings warmth and depth to the room, making it feel more inviting and functional. Whether you opt for LED strips or puck lights, installing under-cabinet lighting is a relatively simple DIY project that yields significant results. As well as improving visibility while cooking or prepping meals, adding under-unit lighting adds a touch of elegance to your kitchen's aesthetic.

3. Revamp – don't renovate

Homeowners are often cautious when approaching a kitchen renovation project. Rather than the issue of cost, the extensive length of time that the kitchen becomes a no-go zone can put owners off attempting the challenge altogether. Generally, a renovation can take anything from two weeks to a good few months to complete, which often isn't practical – especially for busy working professionals and young families. So, instead of ripping the room back to the bare bones, why not refresh the units that you already have? Replacing doors, worktops and even handles is a much more cost-effective way to refresh your kitchen space – even replacing a kitchen tap can modernise a space completely.

4. Work with what you've got

Don't underestimate the power of upcycling when it comes to kitchen renovations. Instead of splurging on new furniture pieces, consider repurposing or refurbishing existing ones. Whether it's giving your old dining table a fresh coat of paint or repurposing an antique dresser as a kitchen storage unit, upcycling allows you to breathe new life into tired furniture pieces for less than the price of a takeaway.

Rizwan-Muazzam Qawwals performance includes music from Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan's lost album

UK tour announced for Qawwali legends

Qawwali music legends Rizwan-Muazzam Qawwals, led by the nephews of the late Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan, announce a UK tour this spring.

The qawwali group, led by Rizwan and Muazzam Ali Khan, will showcase their new album, At the Feet of the Beloved, as well as playing the UK premiere of performances from Chain of Light, the lost Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan album which was first released last year; discovered 34 years after it was recorded.

The two lead singers come from a direct family line of Qawwali music that spans over five centuries.

Their grandfather was an uncle of Nusrat Fateh Ali Khan and taught Nusrat the art of qawwali vocal music.

They have continued their uncle's pioneering efforts to transcend cultural, language and religious barriers and to bring to the world the devotional but vibrant Qawwali vocal music of the Sufi mystics.

The band performs in traditional style – sitting on the ground rather than on seats – which they believe brings them closer to God. They sing in Farsi (Persian), Punjabi, and Urdu with an intensity that has led one commentator to call them, only half in jest, “the Qawwali Clash.”

Their live performances are majestic, hypnotic, exciting, and deeply joyful, and it takes classical music into totally unexpected corners.

Performing songs that use hypnotic vocal repetition to induce a state of ecstasy, their soaring voices are backed by a gharana, an ensemble of harmonium and tabla accompanied by handclaps.

To coincide with this UK tour, the group have released a new album, At the Feet of the Beloved, to rave reviews. A moving collection of songs that ache with the frenzied anxiety of falling in love and dreamy desire of devotion, the album was released in March on Real World Records

As part of this UK tour, the Rizwan-Muazzam Qawwals will perform at Bradford's City of Culture celebrations, and as the closing event of the South Asian Sounds festival at London's Royal Festival Hall, as well as performances in both Birmingham and Bristol.

TOUR DATES

14 May BRADFORD The Alhambra Theatre – part of Bradford 2025 City of Culture celebrations.

18 May LONDON Royal Festival Hall – closing the South Asian Sounds festival

23 May BIRMINGHAM Town Hall

25 May BRISTOL Bristol Beacon

Simple measures deter high tech car thieves

High-tech car thefts are at a record high, but drivers can protect their cars with simple physical barriers such as a steering wheel lock, says a leading breakdown provider.

Using readily available electronic devices, thieves can gain entry to and drive off in many modern cars in seconds. The 2022 to 2023 Crime Survey for England and Wales shows 40% of vehicle thefts were by this method.

Start Rescue is urging drivers to use simple, strong and visible anti-theft solutions such as steering wheel locks and wheel clamps so car criminals will move on to an easier target.

“It takes seconds to attach a steering wheel lock to reduce the risk of theft,” says Lee Puffett, Managing Director of Start Rescue. “Protecting your car from criminals also helps keep your personal information secure that is stored through in-car data and smartphone apps.”

In the UK, 129,159 vehicles were stolen between April 2023 and March 2024. Theft of keyless entry vehicles is on the rise and went up by 2% in this period compared to the previous 12 months.

“Using a steering wheel cover, brake pedal lock or a similar device might seem like an old fashioned way to secure your car,” adds Lee Puffett. “But it’s tried and tested technology and puts off thieves with a tough physical deterrent. Anything that makes a thief ignore your car and move on is worth using.”

Drivers can further help prevent car theft by keeping their keys and fobs out of sight and reach when at home or work. Don’t arrive home and immediately drop your keys on the hall table. Get into the habit of storing them out of sight – thieves won’t care what they damage in their quest to steal keys they can see, even if a door or window is in their way. You can also keep a car key in an RFID pouch to block its signal from thieves.

Start Rescue has a 4.6-star rating on Trustpilot, a five-star Defaqto* rating and has achieved Which? Recommended Provider status for six years running. Start Rescue has also been awarded best Breakdown Cover provider in the Finder Customer Satisfaction Awards 2024 (www.finder.com), scoring 4.9 out of 5 for overall satisfaction with a 94% recommendation rate.

Launched in 2009, Start Rescue is an integral part of the nation’s fourth largest breakdown and recovery service, Call Assist, which now has more than two million UK customers.

Ferrari 12Cilindri wins the Car Design Award 2025

The Ferrari 12Cilindri has been awarded the prestigious Car Design Award, a coveted recognition in the automotive design sector.

The award ceremony, attended by Flavio Manzoni (Ferrari Chief Design Officer) representing the Prancing Horse, took place in Milan at the ADI Design Museum during the Milan Design Week.

The Car Design Award was established in 1984 and is aimed at projects that have significantly contributed to the evolution of automotive design. The winners of the Car Design Award have always been selected by a jury of experts, representatives of the most prestigious automotive publications at international level.

Five Ferraris have received awards in the Production Cars category since 1984: the first was the Testarossa in 1985, followed by the Ferrari Roma in 2020, the 296 GTB in 2022, and the Ferrari Purosangue in 2023. The Prancing Horse Design team won the prestigious award in the same year in the Brand Design Language category.

The ADI jurors chose the 12Cilindri because “the design of the 12Cilindri encapsulates the historical essence of the Ferrari V12s of the Fifties and Sixties, revisited and taking into account the aerodynamic requirements that today are a science and no longer just an intuition. An indissoluble link with tradition that looks to the future and has led this project to unite two souls, sportiness and elegance, to create an out-of-the-box icon.”

Built for adventure and elegance alike, the lower body features 3D-textured protective paint, combining resilience with a rugged yet refined finish.

Up front, facelifted headlights lend a sharper, more assertive edge, while a KAHN® branded rigid spare wheel cover at the rear delivers a polished accent.

Children's charity urges not to miss out on this year's Dragon Boat Race!

Forget Me Not children's hospice is urging local businesses to sign up now for their Dragon Boat Race after some businesses missed out on their hugely popular Race Across West Yorkshire.

The Race Across West Yorkshire saw 20 teams of two from local businesses race around seven secret West Yorkshire checkpoints, taking on challenges and trying to find their way around without their phones or their wallets, raising over £40,000.

But some businesses weren't able to join the fun after the event reached full capacity. So Forget Me Not is getting the message out early for its next competitive team event - September's Dragon Boat Race at Pugneys Country Park.

Georgia Lane, Forget Me Not's fundraising manager said: "Our Dragon Boat Race is always a big hit. Many of the businesses who attend tell us it's a highlight of the year for their staff, a great way to spend time together as a team while raising money for Forget Me Not, a charity that supports local children and families.

"Crews of 17 race in decorated boats across the lake at Pugneys – it's exciting, high-energy and highly competitive. Teams also have a lot of fun ahead of the event planning costumes and fundraising activities and they bring along families and friends to cheer them on. It's an 'oar-some' day out!"

"Because our amazing Race Across West Yorkshire filled up really quickly, some businesses missed the chance to get involved. So the message for the Dragon Boat Race is book your team's place now so you don't, quite literally, miss the boat!"

At Forget Me Not's Dragon Boat Race in 2024, 23 boats raised over £26,500, every penny of which went towards Forget Me Not's vital support for children with life shortening conditions and their families and families living with the loss of their child.

Businesses that took part in 2024 included GWP Architecture, FMG, Richter Associates Ltd, The Children's Family Trust (CFT), Freightliner Group Ltd, CDUK Ltd, Hunter Safety Group, Mace Group, Schofield Sweeney Solicitors, Comm-Ply, We are Wakefield, Batley Law, Amazon UK and headline event sponsor Polyseam Ltd.

ADAM AZIM:

Britain's undefeated boxing phenomenon taking the world by storm

Azim, 22, hails from Slough, Berkshire, coming from a family with deep boxing roots. His father, a boxing trainer, introduced him to the sport at the tender age of four, aiming to channel his boundless energy. His older brother, Hassan Azim, also pursues a professional boxing career.

Azim's heritage traces back to Kotli, Azad Kashmir, and he proudly represents his British-Pakistani identity in the ring. Growing up, he idolised Amir Khan, drawing inspiration from Khan's achievements and aiming to emulate his success on the global stage.

What makes Azim's journey even more remarkable is his openness about living with ADHD, a condition that often goes undiagnosed in the Asian community. But instead of holding him back, it's fuelled his fire. He's turned what many see as a challenge into his greatest strength - a laser-sharp focus inside the ring, combined with relentless drive and resilience.

Speaking in an interview with ESPN, Azim said: "My ADHD is like a superpower for me because I can do any sort of activity I want and put a lot of energy into it." This perspective has not only shaped his training regimen but also positioned him as a role model for others facing similar challenges.

Azim's amateur pedigree is gold-plated: 10 national titles, a European championship, a silver medal, and at one point, ranked world #1 Youth Amateur at welterweight. But his transformation from amateur phenom to pro powerhouse has been nothing short of electric.

Since his debut in December 2020, Azim has delivered knockout after knockout, dazzling fans with blistering speed, vicious combinations, and a crowd-pleasing style reminiscent of his idol. But this isn't just a show - it's a mission.

On November 18th, 2023, he captured his first major belt, stopping the slick and seasoned Franck Petitjean in the 10th round to become European Super-Lightweight Champion. Then, in a dominant title defence, Azim proved it wasn't a fluke. He soon vacated the belt - not out of fear, but out of ambition. The next stop? World champion status.

And he's closing in. On February 1st, 2025, under the bright lights of Wembley Arena, Azim put on a masterclass against former world champion Sergey Lipinets, securing a convincing points win and sending a clear message to the world: he's ready for the big one.

Before that, he handed the legendary Ohara Davies a crushing defeat — one so decisive, Davies retired from boxing altogether. Azim isn't just winning. He's ending careers.

But the power behind Adam Azim isn't just in his punches - it's in his purpose. He's become a beacon for young Asians, especially those navigating ADHD or mental health challenges. A proud Muslim, a proud Pakistani, and a proud British fighter, Azim is carrying not only the hopes of a boxing career but the hopes of a community.

He gives back too - raising thousands for charity, including vital aid for Palestine, and showing that his fight doesn't stop when the bell rings.

With an unblemished record of 13 wins, including 10 knockouts, Azim has captivated fans and critics alike with his speed, power, and charisma.
