Bradford Stories to convert school bus into library space that takes children on reading adventure

Naveed Barugzai Khan and Bradford Stories have joined forces to transform a bright yellow American school bus into a mobile literacy space for Bradford communities to enjoy.

Travelling more than 3,000 miles from New York, the Bradford Stories bus will bring the magic of storytelling to life for children and young people across the city and promote the importance for reading for pleasure.

The bus is the latest offering from the National Literacy Trust and forms part of their Connecting Stories programme funded by Arts Council England.

THE INDIAN

The unknown Muslim heroes of World War 1

2.5 million Muslims contributed to the Allied cause either as soldiers or labourers

At least 885,000 Muslims fought with the Allies in World War I, an estimated 400,000 of them with the 1.5 million-strong British Indian Army that served both on the Western Front and in the Middle East.

More than 47,000 died and 65,000 were wounded, but very few Britons know of the sacrifices made by Muslims for Britain.

For many of these young Muslims, the Great War was their first major encounter with Europe and Europeans, and indeed the home of that "great Empire over the sea" for which 89,000 of them would give their lives.

A wealth of letters written by British Indian soldiers which gave insight to stories of sacrifice, were uncovered three years ago by Dr Islam Issa, Lecturer in English Literature at Birmingham City University.

The Indian soldiers were either writing letters to comrades fighting in other countries, or in most cases, to family back home.

For many in India, at the start of the war it seems like a job opportunity.

The letters revealed that their concerns were quite universal, discussing things like food, pastimes, and what the future might hold, but within these, there were some more unique aspects of their identities, like missing their own cuisine or wondering whether they should still fast during Ramadan.

These Muslim soldiers having travelled thousands of miles from hotter climates, dedicated themselves to the trenches with Imams whose duties included leading group prayers and reciting the call to prayer into the ears of the dying.

Things like prayers and food weren't really an issue for the British so provisions were often made for the Muslim soldiers.

Others taught their folk songs to those serving alongside them, whatever their language, in between the brutal onslaughts of trench warfare.

“Hot halal food was routinely served, prepared by cooks who had accompanied the men. When medical supplies ran out, some of these soldiers used traditional herbal medicines from their homelands to help treat injured comrades, whatever their faith.”

Other documents uncovered over recent years, show instances of Imams, Priests and Rabbis learning each other's burial ceremonies and prayers to lay the dead to rest on the battlefield.

There are reports of Muslim soldiers sharing food with hungry civilians, while French, Belgian and Canadian officers expressed surprise at their humane treatment of German prisoners of war. When asked to explain their conduct, the soldiers quoted the Quran and the teachings of Muhammad (PBUH) on how enemy combatants should be dealt with.

Researchers delving into military, diplomatic and private archives, including diaries and letters, accessing more than 850,000 documents in French, English, Farsi, Urdu, Russian, German and Arabic, as well as hundreds of images. They estimate that 2.5 million Muslims contributed to the allied cause either as soldiers or labourers.

■ Presenter Rob Bell
(Picture: Discovery Science Channel)

University of Bradford archaeologists who discovered a 2km-diameter Neolithic structure near Stonehenge will feature in a TV documentary.

'Stonehenge: Land of the Dead' will premiere on Science Channel on Sunday 28th November and on Channel 5 in the UK soon.

The documentary chronicles the astonishing discovery of the Durrington Pits, a ring of prehistoric 'shafts' up to 10m across and 5m deep just a few miles away from Stonehenge.

The mysterious construction, 20 times bigger than Stonehenge and possibly the largest Neolithic structure in the world, has been carbon dated to 2500BC, and appears to delineate a boundary around the 'super henge' at Durrington Walls and the famous site at Woodhenge.

Lead archaeologist on the project

Professor Vince Gaffney, from the University of Bradford, said: "The recent work confirms that the circle of shafts surrounding Durrington walls is without precedent within the UK.

"It further demonstrates the significance of Durrington Walls Henge, the complexity of the monumental structures within the Stonehenge landscape, and provides a new insight into how the massive monuments at Durrington and Stonehenge were interlinked, in ways, and at a scale, that we had never previously anticipated."

The two-hour special, presented by engineer Rob Bell, will look at the motivation behind the construction of what appears to be the largest prehistoric monument of its kind in the world and why its discovery is redefining historians' initial hypotheses about Neolithic society.

It will allow viewers to follow experts as they use cutting-edge technology to uncover the previously unknown subterranean ring, and to learn why the discovery completely changes our understanding of the Stonehenge landscape and the people who built it.

Follow the conversation on social media with #StonehengeLandOfTheDead, and follow Science Channel on Facebook, Twitter, and Instagram for more updates.

'Stonehenge: Land of the Dead' is produced by Wild Blue Media for Science Channel and distributed internationally by Fremantle. It is produced and directed by Kate Dooley and executive produced by Cameron Balbirnie and Gary Hunter.

Bradford car boss partners with Bradford Stories to convert school bus into library space that takes children on reading adventure

The renovation project was a true community effort bringing together experts from across the city. Naveed Barugzai Khan, founder of EnKahnz vehicle restoration and car customisation, impressively completed the renovation project within five days.

He painted the faded bonnet, updated the grill and metal work bumpers, before refurbishing the wheels and polishing the overall exterior.

The bus's interior was transformed into a functional library and storytelling space by Shred and Butta who added bookshelves, a magical archway and hardwood flooring.

Its exterior was completed with beautiful murals, designed by local artist Naureen Khawaja, that capture the backgrounds, experiences, traditions and values of different generations across the city.

Automotive Artist Naveed recorded a vlog showing the restoration journey from start to finish, ending with the launch and inaugural journey of the bus from October 23 to October 27.

The bus travelled from City Park, to Victoria Shopping Centre, Lady Hill Park, Attock Park, Parkside Community Centre, Wibsey Park, Bradford Moor Park, West Park and T.F.D Youth Club. It had guest appearances from the likes of poet and storyteller Dommy B and Bradford-born author Sairish Hussain.

The bus also supported the Light Festival on November 5 to 6, before kicking off a programme of school and Young Bradford Poets events on reading and writing for pleasure, translation and multilingualism.

Naveed said: “It’s really important that we can give back to the community and inspire the youth for their tomorrow.”

“The Bradford Stories bus has been a great project to get involved in for a good cause, promoting literacy and reading.”

“It’s not the kind of vehicle we would usually work on, but when I met the Bradford Stories team, and learned about their vision, I just had to take on the challenge.”

“It was a pleasure and I hope to continue to stay involved through being on the bus and delivering inspirational talks.”

Imran Hafeez, Hub Manager at Bradford Stories, said: “The bus has turned out better than we could have hoped for. “It feels like the very best for those who deserve it the most; and who better than EnKahnz to make the Bradford Stories bus shine and gleam like new?”

“They worked tirelessly day and night to get it turned around in time and its been an absolute pleasure to get to work with Nav. He’s created something beautiful while carrying and amplifying the cause.”

Richard Shaw, Bid Director of Bradford 2025 UK City of Culture Bid, said: “We’ve been following the ambition to bring the bus to Bradford for over a year now and Bradford 2025 City of Culture has been delighted to help the bus find a new lease of life.”

“It’s been such a labour of love by the team at Bradford Stories and the National Literacy Trust, Connecting Stories and a host of other partners including all the craftspeople who have made this possible all working together to inspire a lifelong love of stories and reading.”

Supported by partners including Bradford 2025, 50 Things to do before 5, EnKahnz, My Lahore, Bradford Council, Friends of Bradford Moor Park and Arts Council England, the Bradford Stories Bus builds the literacy hub’s community-level partnerships with local businesses and artists to inspire school pupils and young people.

Produced in partnership with UK Government

Last year, most of us skipped holidays, avoided large social gatherings and practised enhanced masking and physical distancing due to the threat of Covid-19. All of these factors helped mitigate flu activity since influenza spreads in a similar way to Covid-19.

With Covid-19 restrictions easing this year, the flu is back on the surge, especially since the colder weather means more indoor socialising in lesser ventilated areas. Much of this is down to lower population immunity, putting us all at increased risk - especially those who fall into the vulnerable category.

New research suggests that adults in England are deeply underestimating the combined threat of both Covid-19 and flu this winter.

For those eligible, it's really important to receive a Covid-19 Booster or Flu Jab this winter to protect yourself and other and as a community we have to work together and practice Covid-19 safe behaviours to keep all our family and friends safe.

Let's reduce the spread of Covid-19 and Flu and protect each other

Getting vaccinated against flu and Covid-19 will provide protection for you and those around you

FAQS - Flu Jab

Will we be more vulnerable to flu this year?

Different strains of flu circulate each year. More strains may be in circulation this year as there were few flu cases last season. This means there is less immunity against last year's strains in the population and they could continue circulating this year along with the new strains. The flu virus kills almost 11,000 people and hospitalises tens of thousands more in England in an average year.

Flu vaccination is important because:

- More people are likely to get flu this winter as fewer people will have built up natural immunity to it during the Covid-19 pandemic.
- If you get flu and Covid-19 at the same time, research shows you're more likely to be seriously ill.

Who's eligible?

- All children in primary school and those in secondary school years 7-11
 - Anyone with a serious long-term health condition, such as diabetes, hepatitis, asthma, heart conditions etc
 - Those aged six months to 50 years in clinical risk groups
 - Pregnant women – at any stage in their pregnancy
 - Those aged 50 years and over
 - Close contacts of immunocompromised individuals
 - Frontline health and social care workers
- Visit www.nhs.uk/conditions/vaccinations/flu-influenza-vaccine/ to find out more

Where to get the flu vaccine?

- Your GP surgery
- A pharmacy offering the service
- Your midwife service if you're pregnant
- A hospital appointment
- School children will be offered a flu vaccination in school. If your child hasn't started school yet or is within a high risk group they can get a flu jab at their GP

FAQS - Covid-19 Vaccine

Who's eligible?

- Those aged 50 plus
- Those with a health condition that puts them at high risk from Covid
- People who live and work in care homes
- Frontline health and social care workers

Where to get the COVID-19 Booster vaccine?

- Once invited for your vaccine you can book an appointment online or by calling 119. The booster vaccine is being delivered from a range of locations such as walk-in and mobile vaccination sites. Primary care teams will vaccinate care home staff and residents on site, while health and social care workers can book their booster vaccinations through their employer
- Visit www.nhs.uk/wintervaccinations for more information.

To check your eligibility for the flu vaccine and Covid-19 booster vaccine or to find a service visit nhs.uk/winter/vaccinations as much as we can, along with practising good hygiene and ventilation.

"If anyone comes down with anything, we ensure the house is extra well-ventilated, and that we have limited contact with the family member who has the flu.

"In fact my daughter who lives with her own family in the neighbouring city has had the flu last month, and didn't visit us for three weeks - usually we meet up twice a week.

"Under the current conditions, it's really important to get the flu vaccination, and if someone hasn't already had their Covid-19 vaccinations, I urge them to do so - it's the only way we can stay safe."

NHS deputy vaccination programme lead Dr Nikki Kanani

"Flu and Covid-19 both cost lives and the increased threat from the two deadly viruses this winter makes it even more important for people to continue sticking to good habits like washing their hands regularly.

"It's important anyone eligible comes forward for a flu vaccine as soon as possible and books in their booster when they are invited - the vaccines are safe, effective and the best thing you can do to protect yourself and your loved ones this winter."

Grandad urges to get flu jab

Retired insurance and real estate broker Balal Hussain Ansari, and grandad to seven, suffers from chronic obstructive pulmonary disease (COPD), which makes the cold weather a bit daunting.

"I'm always cautious about the winter weather as it exasperates my breathing difficulties," explains Balal.

"As we are a busy family with everyone working or still in education, it means we have an increased risk of picking up bugs.

"We all always get the flu jab every year as we feel it's important to protect ourselves

Student killed man in her BMW after hitting accelerator instead of brake

A law student mistakenly put her foot down on the accelerator instead of the brake when she ploughed into and killed a man while driving her BMW.

Raveena Raizada, 23, lost control of the car on a mini roundabout on Hayes Road, Southall, west London on March 27, 2020.

She hit Manjit Singh Khaira, 59, who was walking up the pavement in the same direction as the car.

A court heard how the street was deserted at the time of the night-time crash, with no other traffic or pedestrians on the road, and it was a 'cruel twist of fate' that Mr Khaira was hit.

Raizada, who achieved a first-class degree in business and law at university, admitted causing death by careless driving and appeared at the Old Bailey for sentencing on Tuesday.

The court heard how she had initially tried to blame Mr Khaira for the crash, claiming he had walked out into the middle of the road.

In her first police interview she said: 'The guy was literally in the middle of the road and I tried to avoid him and I just swerved.'

But CCTV showed this was not the case and her lawyer, Marianna Pasteris, said her client was merely repeating what her passenger had told her had happened and should never have been questioned when she was in a 'complete state of shock.'

Accident investigators found Raizada lost control of the car and then pressed the wrong pedal, accelerating rather than braking before she hit the victim.

Ms Pasteris stressed Raizada was of good character, had worked since she was 17 and had shown 'great remorse' over the incident.

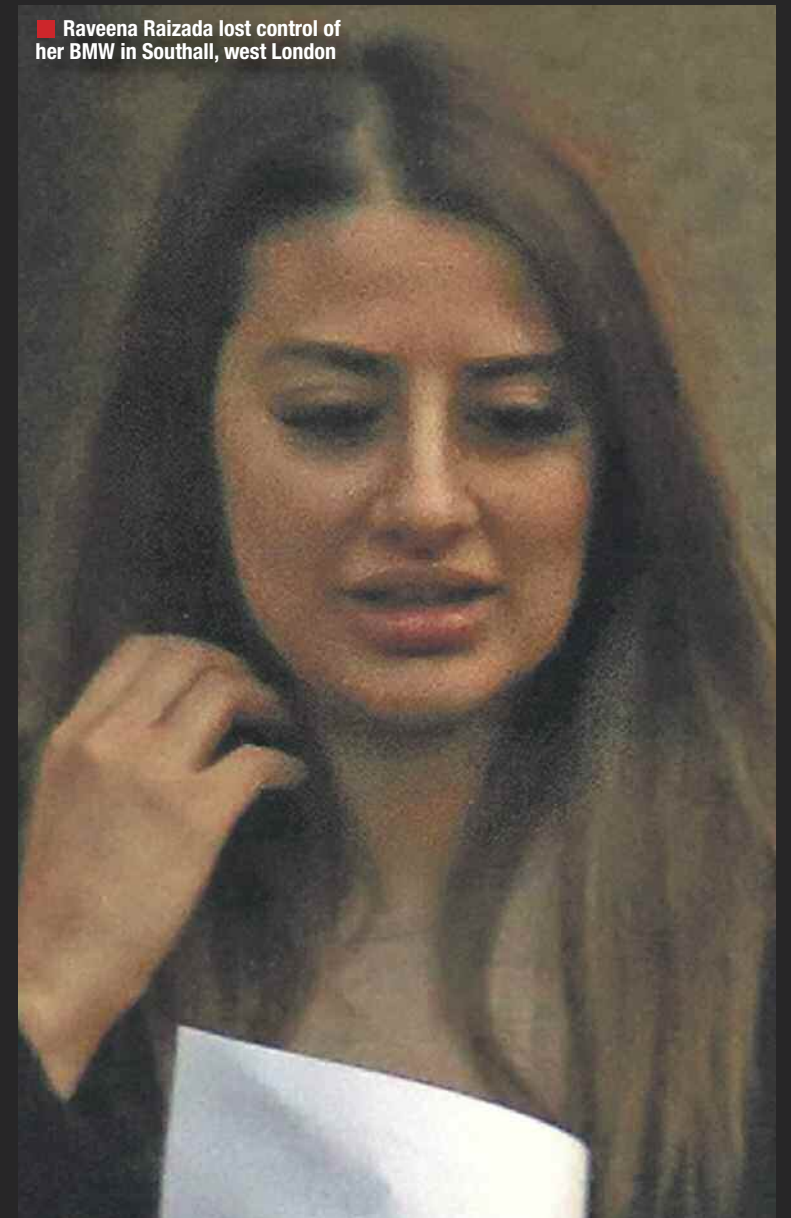

She also said what had happened had had a significant impact on her client's mental health.

The judge, Mark Dennis, agreed and told the court: 'This has plainly had a dramatic effect on the defendant's mental health.'

Raizada was allowed to walk free from court but was given 150 hours of unpaid work.

She was also disqualified from driving for a year and must take another test before she can drive again.

Urging UK government to help deliver referendum for Kashmir

The Green Party of England and Wales has officially backed calls for a referendum in the state of Jammu and Kashmir following calls by Khalid Mahmood from Bradford Green Party.

Khalid Mahmood, the Green Party candidate for Heaton Ward in Bradford District, put forward a motion to the parties national conference in Birmingham.

The motion confirms the party's support for the right of self-determination for the Kashmiri people and urges the UK government to use its influence with the governments of India and Pakistan to deliver a referendum.

The party also condemned the decision by the Indian government to revoke the special status the region enjoyed under the Indian constitution – effectively ending the autonomy the region had.

I am delighted that Green Party members recognised how important this issue is to the large community of British-Kashmiris.

Khalid Mahmood said, “I am delighted that Green Party members recognised how important this issue is to the large community of British-Kashmiris.

“This gives the Green Party a platform to put pressure in the British government to demand that India and Pakistan deliver a proper referendum in the region and allow Kashmiri's to determine their own future.”

The Green Party also condemned the decision earlier this year by the Indian government to revoke Article 370 – a long-standing

The people of Bradford has always provided one of the strongest voices when it comes to standing up for oppressed people throughout the world agreement which gave Kashmir semi-autonomous status – leading to unrest as well as media blackouts, the cutting off of telephone networks and the banning of public gatherings.

Khalid added: “In recent years we have seen a real escalation in the region with the attacks on Kashmiri human rights by Narendra Modi's government as well as the change to the constitutional status of Kashmir. All of this will make peace in the region much harder.”

“The people of Bradford has always provided one of the strongest voices when it comes to standing up for oppressed people throughout the world and I know many in our city want to see a peaceful resolution to the problems in the region.”

Time is running out for customers with Post Office card accounts

Around 24,000 HM Revenue and Customs (HMRC) customers with a Post Office card account have just three weeks left to update the department with new payment details before the 30th November deadline, or risk having payments paused.

From 1st December 2021, HMRC will stop making tax credits, Child Benefit and Guardian's Allowance payments to Post Office card accounts.

HMRC is urging account holders to contact them to update their bank account details to continue receiving payments without disruption.

Customers can choose to receive their benefits and credits payments to a bank, building society or credit union account. If they already have an alternative account, they can contact HMRC now to update their details.

Myrtle Lloyd, HMRC's Director General for Customer Services, said: "Time is running out for customers who have been using a Post Office card account to get payments from us. They need to give us their new account details now to avoid their payments being suspended."

"They can update their details online or by calling us, and they need to be very careful to avoid handing over personal details to fraudsters contacting them claiming to be from

HMRC."

If a customer misses the 30th November deadline, their payments will be paused until the customer notifies HMRC of their new account details.

The Money Advice and Pensions Service offers information and advice about how to choose the right current account and how to open an account.

Child Benefit and Guardian's Allowance customers can use their Personal Tax Account to provide revised account details, change their bank account details via GOV.UK or by contacting the Child Benefit helpline on 0300 200 3100.

Tax credits customers can change their bank account details by contacting the tax credits helpline on 0345 300 3900. If customers cannot open a bank account, they should contact HMRC.

Don't get scammed

HMRC has been contacting customers recently to urge them to take action.

HMRC urges everyone to be alert if they are contacted out of the blue by someone asking for money or personal information.

Customers should always type in the full online address www.gov.uk/hmrc to access the correct HMRC contact information. HMRC sees high numbers of fraudsters emailing, calling or texting people claiming to be from the department.

If in doubt, HMRC advises not to reply directly to anything suspicious, but to contact them straight away and to search GOV.UK for 'HMRC scams'.

Humanitarian needs in Iran rise as 300,000 Afghans arrive since Taliban takeover

■ "Nobody leaves their home voluntarily" says Mohammed. He and his wife Khooshrang fled to Iran from Afghanistan over 30 years ago, and live in Bardsir settlement in Kerman province with their eight children. 12 people share the two small rooms in their home. They fear that there will not be enough support for everyone as thousands more people flee Afghanistan since the Taliban took over. All their relatives in Afghanistan tell them it's impossible to stay and that they have to flee - many go to the borders looking for a way out. (Photo: Laila Matar/NRC)

The Norwegian Refugee Council (NRC) has called for more funding and responsibility sharing, as 4,000 to 5,000 Afghans flee across the border to Iran daily.

Between 4,000 and 5,000 Afghans are fleeing into Iran each day via informal border crossings, according to locally reported figures.

"Thousands of exhausted women, children and men are crossing from Afghanistan into Iran every day in search of safety. Iran cannot be expected to host so many Afghans with so little support from the international community," said the Norwegian Refugee Council's (NRC) Secretary General Jan Egeland on a visit to Iran.

"There must be an immediate scale up of aid both inside Afghanistan and in neighbouring countries like Iran, before the deadly winter cold."

NRC is on the ground in Iran supporting those Afghans, in addition to hundreds of thousands others who have been sheltering in the country for much longer – some for decades.

While a fraction of people have returned to Afghanistan, the numbers arriving continue to rise. This trend may increase as the Afghan winter arrives and harsh below zero temperatures hit. In addition, the country's economy is in freefall and the humanitarian crisis is intensifying.

"We've heard heartbreaking stories from families that have recently arrived in Iran. One refugee said they were targeted for being Shi'a Muslim, their few remaining possessions were taken, their house burned, and they had to flee multiple times within Afghanistan before reaching Iran. They were told that their daughters would be married off to fighters as soon as they reach the age of 10," said Egeland.

The United Nations refugee agency's appeal to support Afghans fleeing to neighbouring countries calls for nearly US$300 million to help up to 515,000 people that may flee before the end of the year. The appeal is only 32 per cent funded so far. About US$136 million of the total appeal funding is needed to support Afghans in Iran.

"We commend Iran for welcoming and hosting millions of displaced Afghans for the past four decades. But now the international community must step up to support Afghanistan's neighbours and share the responsibility to help them to continue welcoming refugees. Afghans represent one of the world's largest refugee caseloads. Now return conditions are set to become ever more elusive."

While large number of Afghan refugees are not moving towards Europe yet, all rich nations should both ramp up aid and keep their borders open to those fleeing conflict and persecution. European nations, including Poland, must stop deporting Afghan asylum seekers and review all failed applications in light of the crisis.

Facts and figures

- It is estimated that at least 300,000 Afghans have entered Iran since the takeover of government by the Taliban. It may be expected that hundreds of thousands will continue to arrive over the winter.

- Nearly 5 million Afghans remain displaced outside of the country. Of these, 90 per cent are hosted by the Islamic Republics of Iran and Pakistan.

- Some 3.6 million Afghans reside in Iran, although only 780,000 are recognised as refugees.

- Iran would be second largest refugee hosting country in the world after Turkey, if all Afghans were recognised as refugees.

- Iran is among the most Covid-affected countries in the region. Close to 6 million people have been infected, while the number of reported associated deaths is over 126,000. Iran has been vaccinating Afghan refugees, including those undocumented.

- Afghan children in Iran, regardless of the legal status of their parents, can enrol in public schools together with Iranian children. This is an example of one of the most inclusive refugee policies globally.

- The UN Refugee Agency has called for a bar on forced returns of Afghan nationals, including asylum seekers who have had their claims rejected. NRC supports this call.

- Over half of Afghanistan's population are in need of humanitarian assistance, according to the United Nations.

David Attenborough has beaten Greta Thunberg to be crowned the nation's most inspirational 'green' celebrity - closely followed by Prince William and Prince Charles

The 95-year-old conservationist topped a list which included A-list stars like Leonardo di Caprio and Angelina Jolie.

However, it was teenage climate activist Greta Thunberg who placed second on the list and was also the youngest at the tender age of 18.

The research also found a number of Royals placing within the top 10, including Prince William, Prince Charles and Kate Middleton.

A spokesperson for Utilita, the energy supplier behind the eco list, said: "David has done so much for this planet. For decades he has been gracing our TV screens and educating the nation on the beautiful wildlife that surrounds us; he's made a huge difference.

"Mother Earth needs more of the same from us all - we all have an equal responsibility to take care of our planet. And it's important to note that every little action makes a difference; they all add up."

"But Mother Earth needs more of the same from us all - we all have an equal responsibility to take care of our planet.

"And it's important to note that every little action makes a difference; they all add up."

Elon Musk, founder of electric car manufacturer Tesla, placed at number 17 on the list, while eco-warrior and actor Leonardo di Caprio came in at seventh.

It also emerged three in four adults agreed it's important for personalities to be kind to the planet, with 55 per cent saying it's because they need to set an example.

Whereas 61 per cent said public figures are equally responsible as any other individual.

In fact, nearly a quarter of those polled are more likely to make a change to their habits and be more sustainable to replicate what a celebrity has done.

And one-third have been inspired, at one time or another, to make a change in their life after witnessing the actions of a public figure.

The study, conducted via OnePoll.com, also found 71 per cent believe it's easier for celebrities to be sustainable because they have more money.

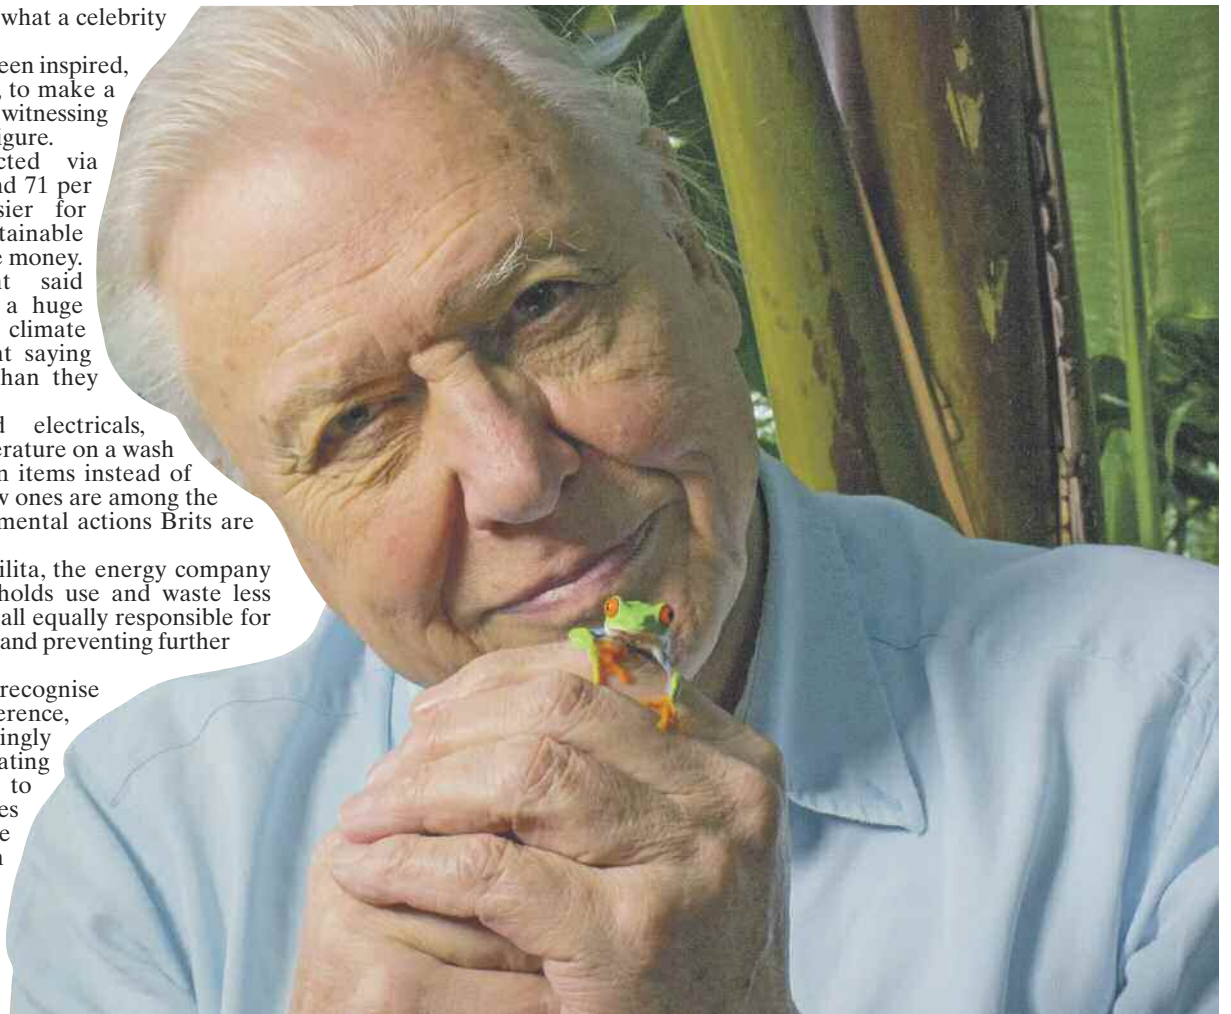

But 83 per cent said personalities are also a huge contributor of to the climate crisis, with 77 per cent saying they could do more than they already are.

Unplugging unused electricals, turning down the temperature on a wash cycle and fixing broken items instead of replacing them with new ones are among the most common environmental actions Brits are making.

A spokesman for Utilita, the energy company created to help households use and waste less energy, added: "We are all equally responsible for looking after our planet and preventing further damage.

"It's important to recognise that we all make a difference, whether it's as seemingly small as turning the heating down by a degree to something that requires bigger investment like installing solar panels on your roof, it all adds up.

"Celebrities are another powerful voice that can help pave the way for a greener future."

Bradford arts organisation appoints new trustees

Following a public call out, Kala Sangam Arts Centre is delighted to have appointed Sameena Hussain and Sufyan Dogra as new Trustees to its ten strong Board.

These appointments mark the end of a three-year process aimed at ensuring that Kala Sangam's Board, Chaired by Jas Athwal DL, is more reflective of Bradford's diverse communities. In an important step for the company, for the first time since 2006, 50% of Kala Sangam's Trustees are now of South Asian heritage.

Sameena Hussain, who was recently appointed Associate Director at Leeds Playhouse, is the first person to take the new Emerging Leadership Trustee position at Kala Sangam. This role was designed to support the career development of an individual with a desire to move into a leadership role within the arts but who is also looking to gain the practical experience needed.

Sameena's work is rooted in community connection and getting to know people in order to remove both visible and invisible barriers to engaging with theatre. She is passionate about making theatre a safe and brave space, enabling dialogue and connection.

Sufyan Dogra is a Senior Research Fellow at Born in Bradford. He has 10 years of experience working on the promotion and representation of ethnic minorities in public health, policy, art and culture with a particular focus on British Pakistani and Bangladeshi communities. His work with Born in Bradford is focused on reducing health inequalities for disadvantaged communities and ethnic minorities.

Jas Athwal said, 'We are delighted to welcome Sameena and Sufyan to the Kala Sangam Board. They both bring with them a wealth of insight and experience which will be extremely valuable as we enter an exciting time for Kala Sangam, with some big plans on the horizon.'

Kala Sangam's Creative Director Alex Croft said, 'We received some extremely strong applications for these positions so I know it was a difficult decision for our Trustees, but I am delighted with the decision they have made.'

'They join a Board that is supportive, positive, forward thinking and with a huge passion for Bradford. I'm looking forward to working with Sameena and Sufyan to make a real difference here in the District.'

Based in the heart of Bradford city centre, between Bradford Cathedral and The Broadway, Kala Sangam is a multi-purpose arts space, with theatre, gallery, conferencing facilities and on-site café.

#LestWeForget

By Imam Qari Asim

"On #ArmisticeDay, we #RememberTogether and celebrate those servicemen and women of all faiths, beliefs and backgrounds who fought in #World War I and World War II to protect our freedoms. It's day to renew commitment to peace and reject hatred and intolerance."

Most people, including Muslims, don't know that hundreds of thousands of Muslim soldiers, from present-day Pakistan, fought for Britain in the First World War. It's important that they do – this shared history of contribution is something that we can all commemorate in Britain, whatever our ethnicity or belief.

Over a million soldiers from pre-partition India signed up too, many of them posted to the trenches of the Western Front, braving their first-ever European winter in their tropical uniforms. Without the sheer numbers of the Indian army, the history of WW1 could have looked very different indeed.

Most people don't know that hundreds of thousands of Muslim soldiers also fought for Britain in WW1

Four hundred thousand of those men were Muslims from what is now Pakistan. Men like Khudadad Khan, a soldier from the Punjab: fighting in the trenches of the Western Front the badly-wounded machine gunner single-handedly held off the enemy advance long enough for Indian and British reinforcements to arrive.

Armistice Day is on 11th November, also known as Remembrance Day, marks the day World War One ended, at 11am on the 11th day of the 11th month, in 1918

At a time when anti-Muslim hatred, #Islamophobia is on the rise, and the loyalty of ethnic minorities to Britain is being questioned by some, it's only right that the heroism and bravery of Muslim soldiers as well as soldiers from other backgrounds- who fought in the First and Second World Wars is also remembered.

What better riposte to far-right extremists, when they say that Muslims have no place in Britain, than to point out that Muslims gave their lives for Britain; that men from my ancestral country of Pakistan joined up to fight when this country most needed them?

Amongst my mosque congregation, there are many whose fathers and grandfathers fought in these two devastating wars. There is a similar story across the country. Many Muslims are proud of this shared heritage with their fellow citizens.

We will be holding a special prayer service at our mosque in Leeds on Remembrance Sunday to remember these fallen heroes.

Remembering our history can help to bring us together and renew our commitment to fight for justice and equality. While our society can feel more fragmented and divided than any of us would like, these moments that we all share can help to shape a more inclusive identity that feels equally owned by Britons of all backgrounds and colours.

On Remembrance Sunday, we should remember the power of Britain's pluralism and that our strength as Brits comes from our diversity and not from our differences."

Prince Charles' charity commit £2m for women's post-Covid recovery in Pakistan

The British Asian Trust is investing £2m (Rs 46 crores) of match funding from the UK government – received in support of the Trust's "If I Can, She Can" Appeal – into its Women's Economic Empowerment programme to help Pakistani women whose livelihoods have been impacted by Covid-19.

The Women's Economic Empowerment programme equips Pakistani women with the skills, knowledge and confidence needed to find a job or start their own business in a post-Covid world. So far, it has helped more than 9,800 women increase their income, placed more than 3,400 women in paid internships and employment opportunities, and supported over 7,000 women in starting their own enterprises.

Kamyla Marvi, Pakistan Director of the British Asian Trust, said, "With financial support from the UK government's Foreign, Commonwealth & Development Office (FCDO), the programme has helped over 10,000 women from 2017 to 2020 to obtain secure jobs or establish their own businesses."

The British Asian Trust was founded in 2007, by HRH The Prince of Wales and British Asian business leaders, to tackle widespread poverty, inequality and injustice in Pakistan, India, Bangladesh and Sri Lanka.

Richard Hawkes, Chief Executive of the British Asian Trust said, "We are absolutely delighted to have raised the incredible total amount of £4.69m (Rs 108 crores) – including the £2m matched by the UK government – thanks to the incredible generosity of our supporters and the government. It is more important than ever that we all come together to help marginalised people and communities – especially those whose lives have been devastated due to the pandemic."

He added, "This is a great example of the government, the public and a charity working together on something incredibly successful that will change the lives of hundreds of thousands of women."

Other initiatives by the British Asian Trust to drive post-Covid recovery efforts include the "Palaces on Wheels" charity cycle ride, which saw HRH The Prince of Wales ride a bicycle at Highgrove to see-off Pakistani-origin and British Asian cyclists on a gruelling 400 km challenge.

The campaign was supported by British Asian Trust ambassadors, including international pop star Katy Perry, British actor Sanjeev Bhaskar, TV presenter Konnie Huq, chart-topping British musician Naughty Boy, England cricketer Jos Buttler and Pakistani music maestro Rahat Fateh Ali Khan.

A Manchester man who used the encrypted phone network EncroChat to import cocaine worth £1.6m has today pleaded guilty.

Ibraheem Abdullah, 38, was arrested by National Crime Agency officers on 17 April 2020 when the 20 kilos of high purity cocaine – hidden in boxes of mobile phone accessories – was seized at a joiners yard in the Middleton area.

Abdullah (also known as Dwaine George) attempted to escape when he saw NCA and Greater Manchester Police officers, who had just entered the yard in Wade Street.

He tried to destroy two mobile phones during the subsequent chase on foot - by throwing one against a wall and dropping another into the nearby Wince Brook - but was arrested minutes later.

Electronic scales and a quantity of small plastic bags were recovered during a subsequent search of his home address in Mariman Drive, Manchester.

The NCA investigation found that the device Abdullah had thrown against the wall was crucial, as it was the EncroChat phone he used to arrange the shipment under his Encro handle 'Tenderpasta'.

The drugs had been posted from the Netherlands and tests showed that they had a purity of between 70 and 73 per cent. They would have had an estimated street value of £1.6 million once cut.

On 7 April 2020, 'Tenderpasta' exchanged messages with the EncroChat handle 'Maxbro', and identified the joiner's yard as the best drop off location. He also sent a photo of the location.

Analysis of billing for numbers used by Abdullah show that around the time of these messages, his phones were using cell masts near the joiners yard.

Other Encrochat messages with a contact using the handle 'Flyinghouse' showed that Abdullah was trying to arrange an onward buyer for the cocaine, with the two individuals agreeing a sale price of £37,500 per kilo.

Abdullah appeared at Manchester City Crown Court on Tuesday, 9 November where he admitted a charge of conspiracy to import Class A drugs. He is due to be sentenced at the same court on 17 December.

NCA Operations Manager Helen Murphy said: "Like many other users of EncroChat, Abdullah will have mistakenly thought that he could traffic drugs with impunity.

"The NCA works with partners across the UK to ensure there are no safe spaces for serious and organised criminals, including those who seek to profit from a class A drugs trade which fuels violence and exploitation in our communities."

Bradford start-ups to receive new support as new Business & IP Centre Local opens in City Library

Bradford based start-ups can now get free support to start, protect or grow a small business through the new Business & IP Centre Local at City Library.

The new Centre is one of several across West Yorkshire libraries - including Calderdale and Wakefield - to offer spaces, business resources and services to local residents. Now Bradford residents will also be able to access up-to-date market research, business information and databases and attend specialist events and one-to-ones at their local library.

These new services are part of the British Library's expansion of its network of library-based Business & IP Centres to 100 regional and local libraries across England. The new BIPC locals across West Yorkshire build on the popular service already available through Leeds Libraries.

The Business & IP Centre in Bradford will officially open on Monday 15 November, but as a prelude to this, on Thursday 11 November as part of the British Library's Start-up Day event, budding entrepreneurs are invited to join a morning of demonstrations of the resources and databases, designed to get new business ideas off to a flying start. Places can be booked here.

The British Library is embarking on ambitious plans in the region, having secured government funding to reimagine its Boston Spa site: home to 70% of the growing national collection. In addition, the Library hopes to open a new public site in Temple Works, Leeds, this decade, providing greater access to its collections and building on its current programme of events, exhibitions and workshops in the city.

Councillor Sarah Ferriby, Bradford Council's Executive Member for Healthy People and Places, said: "The Bradford district is renowned for its entrepreneurial spirit and in 2017 it was named as the best city to start a new business. Having a new BIPC in Bradford will be great for our budding entrepreneurs, helping them to get the information and access to resources they need to get their business off to a flying start."

Bradford-based entrepreneur Omar Bahadur, founder of Faraday Drinks Ltd in Bradford and previous user of the Business & IP Centre Leeds, said: "The business support offered through the Leeds library service has been invaluable in helping me research my market and understand my customers. It was really easy to access support throughout the pandemic and the information provided by the BIPC helped me to develop my business plan. It's great that even more people can now access free support locally around West Yorkshire to help with their own businesses."

Liz Jolly, Chief Librarian at the British Library, said: "At their heart, libraries are trusted spaces with professional staff who have a mission to connect people with information. From Glasgow to Brighton, our BIPC Network harnesses the power of libraries, bringing in expertise from the local community to help people from all walks of life turn an idea into a successful business."

"We're delighted to mark this next chapter in the Network's journey, growing from 14 to over 100 new regional and local Centres across England, with a longer-term ambition to expand across the UK. Our mission is to put business support in every library, but we're also learning lessons from the past year, by making sure more and more of our business and IP workshops, events and 1-1s are open to everyone online."

Anyone wanting help to start or grow their own business in Bradford can visit BIPC Local at Bradford's City Library.

Further information about the Business & IP Centre Leeds City Region and where to find your nearest centre can be found by visiting www.leeds.gov.uk/bipcleeds.

Another Set Back For Commercial Tenants Affected By The Pandemic

In a previous article in this publication earlier this year it was reported in the case of Commerz Real Investmentgesellschaft mbh v TFS Stores Limited that the tenant of a commercial premises had unsuccessfully tried to argue that the landlord's claim for rent arrears was premature because the landlord failed to engage with the Government's Code of Practice for Commercial Property Relationships and that it was an implied term of the lease that the landlord was obliged to claim on its insurance for loss of rent before seeking to claim that from the tenant. That argument failed and the landlord was granted judgment by the High Court for the rent arrears.

In another case which has recently been heard by the High Court the tenant tried to defend the claim by the landlord for rent arrears on different grounds. In London Trocadero (2015) LLP v Picturehouse Cinemas Limited and Others the tenant held two leases of premises used as cinemas in the Trocadero Centre in London. As a consequence of the restrictions imposed by the Government to combat the pandemic, both of the tenant's cinemas were forced to closed for substantial parts of 2020 and 2021 which resulted in a reduction in revenue for the tenant from £8.92m to £247,000 and, as a consequence the tenant did not pay any rent. The landlord sued the tenant for £2.9m of rent arrears.

In defence of the landlord's claim, the tenant raised the following arguments:

a) terms should be implied into the lease providing that payment of rent and service charge should be suspended during any period when using the premises as a cinema was illegal or the attendance would not be at the same level as anticipated when the leases were entered into; and

b) a partial failure of consideration had taken place because operation as a cinema was the fundamental basis on which the tenant had entered into the lease and therefore, payment was not due in respect of the periods that the premises could not be used as a cinema.

However, the Court rejected both arguments.

In relation to the proposed implied term, the Court found that this was not necessary to give the leases business efficacy. It was also inconsistent with the express terms of the leases. The leases expressly provided for rent to be suspended in certain circumstances and this indicated that the risk of not being able to use the premises in any other circumstances lay with the tenant who could have taken out business interruption insurance.

As regards the failure of consideration, the Court emphasised the need for a failure of the relevant state of affairs to be fundamental to the basis of the agreement, rather than a mere failure of an expectation which was not fulfilled. The Court found that the use of premises as a cinema was not "fundamental to the basis" on which the leases were entered into but was instead an expectation which motivated the tenant to enter into the leases.

This case follows the trend of recent decisions which have favoured landlords seeking to recover arrears of rent and service charge during periods where tenants have been unable to trade from their premises as a result of the Government restrictions in relation to the pandemic.

Rotary awards recognise support work during pandemic

Rotary International Yorkshire and North Lincolnshire District 1040 has recognised work undertaken by people during the pandemic during a special awards ceremony at the University of Bradford.

Vice-Chancellor Professor Shirley Congdon and Deputy Vice-Chancellor (Academic, Innovation and Quality) Prof Zahir Irani both received an award, alongside Lord-Lieutenant for West Yorkshire Ed Anderson and honorary graduate and community leader Javed Bashir.

Presenting the awards, Dr Manoj Joshi DL, District Governor 2019-20 for Yorkshire and North Lincolnshire Rotary, which represents more than 100 Rotary clubs, said: "When I was first elected, I visited many clubs and found there were so many people carrying out voluntary activities but there was no way of recognising this. So I initiated these awards, which are the first in the UK and Ireland.

"The University of Bradford has supported Rotary from day one - Shirley as the first female vice-chancellor has supported many new initiatives while leading the University during this very difficult period, giving stability and strength to everyone working here.

"Likewise, Prof Zahir Irani has been inspirational in working shoulder-to-shoulder with Prof Congdon, making things happen, making knowledge work in practise."

He praised Ed Anderson for his stalwart support of individuals and organisations and for modernising the office of Lord Lieutenant.

He added: "Javed Bashir has brought people of faith together and supported the university in an exceptional manner during the pandemic, so that not only do people do good work together but they also then sustain it."

Accepting her award, Prof Congdon said: "I remember when we first started the Student Hardship Fund and Manoj was the first person to commit to making a donation, along with Javed."

Mr Bashir, who teamed up with different faith communities to set up the Volunteering Interfaith Partnership in collaboration with Age UK Bradford & District and Strengthening Faith Institutions, added: "I think Manoj also deserves an award, as he has also taken part in giving out food and winning the hearts and minds of people - providing help and support to people who need it."

Wakefield artist Mohammed Barrangi commissioned for Wakefield mural part of £4.7M project

A disabled Iranian artist and Paralympian has been commissioned to create a new mural in Wakefield for world-renowned arts programme 'Unlimited' as it makes the City its new home.

In anticipation of becoming an independent organisation, arts commissioning programme Unlimited has set up its new base in WX Wakefield. The organisation is the largest supporter of disabled artists worldwide and has awarded £4.7 million to over 400 ambitious artists.

To celebrate its arrival, Wakefield artist Mohammad Barrangi was selected to create Unlimited's very first project - a new mural in the city, along with a film.

Born in 1988 in Rasht, a Northern city in Iran, Barrangi recently graduated from the London Drawing School. His work often explores his own disability together with influences from Persian miniature painting and personal stories told in intricate detail, and sometimes humour.

His work often explores his own disability together with influences from Persian miniature painting and personal stories told in intricate detail, and sometimes humour.

The mural is about travelling and migration. Barrangi depicts five female faces in the mural including the Iranian queen and the artist's friend in Iran. He paints many of the figures with just one arm because the artist himself has "just one arm".

Barrangi said: "I love printmaking. I make them with my hand and using my leg.

"I think, for me, Unlimited is like my family and they are very good for all disabled artists.

"Making this mural has been very new for me because previously, when I have worked at the British Museum or Tate Modern it's been for installations, it's been inside.

"I think this [Wakefield] mural reflects my life and it's interesting, because after we put the mural on the wall by the cathedral I received many messages from British people and refugees about it.

"I hope for the future I would have another project like that, outdoor work.

"Honestly, I am really busy with artwork right now - for Arts Council, a solo show in Paris, a piece in Los Angeles - I'm just working, working, working.

"Unlimited is my family and not a small family, it's a big family, linking artists who are disabled across the whole of the UK and further. I think the future is good for Unlimited in Wakefield - and that's good for me actually!"

Do you know how many shampoo, conditioner and make up bottles we get through every year?

Well... the average bathroom has at least two empty bottles kicking around, that we’ve still yet to recycle.

That’s approximately 40 grams of plastic in each of the 3.8million bathrooms in the UK – equating to a whopping around 152,000kg.

But most adults are doing everything they can to recycle the products they’re using, with the average adult disposing of 312 plastic bottles a year.

That’s 19,665 over the course of their lifetime, which is equal to more than four times the height of the Burj Khalifa if piled up on top of each other.

In a survey, it also emerged six in 10 adults want to be more sustainable in their everyday life but don’t know where to start, with a third saying there’s just not enough plastic-free or options made from recycled plastic.

And 81 would like to see more alternative plastic free products available.

The research was commissioned by professional haircare brand weDo, which has partnered with Plastic Bank to donate money for every bottle sold.

A spokesperson from weDO said: “The study has revealed we dispose of a shocking amount of plastic in our lifetimes, so it’s fantastic to see so many Brits want to become more sustainable.

“But it’s not always easy to know where to start. Reducing and reusing have proven to be more sustainable than recycling, so why not start there.

“Taking an extra two minutes at the shops to scout out any reduced plastic packaging, or even products in bottles that have already been recycled is a great place to start.”

The survey went on to reveal most plastic at home is in the kitchen, closely followed by the bathroom, where 53 per cent of all products are made from plastic.

Although 38 per cent consider whether the packaging is recycled or recyclable when purchasing new toiletries and 77 per cent want to cut down on their plastic bottle usage.

With the average Brit using five products per day as part of their hygiene routine, one in 10 make use of plastic-free or recycled plastic alternatives on a daily basis.

Some of these plastic-free products include soap bars, glass bottles, refills, shampoo bars and toothpaste tabs.

But when it comes to plastic, 75 per cent reuse bottles where they can and 76 per cent see recycled plastic bottles as a more sustainable alternative to non-recycled options.

Although the study via OnePoll revealed one in 10 said a lack of knowledge about alternatives to plastic is the main barrier to reducing their consumption.

While others blamed it on plastic options being deemed the most cost effective.

“Unlimited has an amazing record of supporting, funding and promoting the artwork of disabled people across the UK.” - Michael Graham, cabinet member for Culture, Leisure and Sport at Wakefield.

UNLIMITED

The mural is the first project Unlimited has commissioned in Wakefield, and it is part of a UK-wide commissioning programme that has given opportunities for disabled artists nationally to develop and make new work.

Promoting the artwork of disabled people

Currently led by Senior Producer

Jo Verrent and delivered by Shape Arts and Artsadmin, Unlimited supports disabled artists to create and present their work across all art forms.

Jo Verrent said: “Yorkshire is a great base for us to provide support, funding and promote new work by disabled artists for UK and international audiences. We look forward to getting to know both the people and places of Wakefield so we can genuinely add traction to our new home - supporting, partnering and creating new opportunities for disabled people as audiences, participants and, of course, artists.”

As an Arts Council England-funded programme, Unlimited will be connecting, collaborating and partnering with local organisations like The Hepworth Wakefield and The Art House.

Abi Shapiro, assistant curator, The Hepworth Wakefield said: “Unlimited has a fantastic reputation as a disabled led organisation that leads the sector on accessibility and inclusivity.

“We are excited to learn from their expertise and to work with a wide range of visual artists and we hope together to create new opportunities for all artists in the Wakefield district drawing on their strong artistic networks.”

Michael Graham, cabinet member for Culture, Leisure and Sport at Wakefield said: “Arts and culture are extremely important to Wakefield and so is making sure that arts, culture and everything that’s included are inclusive and open to everyone.

“Unlimited has an amazing record of supporting, funding and promoting the artwork of disabled people across the UK. They have enabled artwork from disabled artists to tell many important stories, to reach millions of people in the UK and internationally, shaping society.

“We are absolutely delighted that Unlimited is to be making their new home in the Wakefield district and, as a council, we are very much looking forward to working with them to help deliver for the people of Wakefield and help to increase the representation of disabled people in every way possible.”

To celebrate its arrival, the Unlimited team have created a film ‘Unlimited moves to Wakefield’ with key individuals and organisations expressing what they feel Unlimited will bring to Wakefield district. The film is available in multiple accessible formats and can be watched on Unlimited’s website from 26 October.

Unlimited is located near Wakefield Cathedral in a passageway that is used by a wide cross-section of people.

WhatsApp SCAM: Users urged to be wary over 'FRIEND IN NEED' fraud

The messages are sent from the compromised accounts of your friends, so they look as if they're coming from someone you know

People are being warned about fake WhatsApp messages and texts from friends they know claiming to be in need.

The messages are sent from the compromised accounts of your friends, so they look as if they're coming from someone you know, or they come from an unknown number claiming to be a friend who has lost their phone or been 'locked out' of their account.

Scammers can hijack WhatsApp accounts, often by using accounts they have already hijacked, to message friends and contacts asking for help.

Often these "friends in need" claim that they are sending their WhatsApp security code to the victim and ask for it to be sent back to them – however this security code belongs to the victim and enables the criminals to hijack their account.

Other scammers ask directly for money or personal information to be shared over the app.

"If you receive a suspicious message... making a phone call to them, or requesting a voice note is the fastest and simplest way to check someone is who they say they are," said WhatsApp.

A new awareness campaign launched by WhatsApp and National Trading Standards says that 59% of people have either received a scam text in the last year or know someone who has.

The 'Stop. Think. Call.' campaign aims to inform potential victims about the scams and educate them on how to protect themselves and their WhatsApp accounts.

Louise Baxter, the head of the National Trading Standards scams team and Friends Against Scams, said reports of "friend-in-need" scams have been growing in recent months.

Ms Baxter said: "Scammers send messages that appear to come from a friend or family member asking for personal information, money or a six-digit pin number."

"These kinds of scams are particularly cruel as they prey on our kindness and desire to help friends and family."

Kathryn Harnett, policy manager at WhatsApp, said: "WhatsApp protects our users' personal messages with end-to-end encryption, but we want to remind people that we all have a role to play in keeping our accounts safe by remaining vigilant to the threat of scammers."

"We advise all users never to share their six-digit pin code with others, not even friends or family, and recommend that all users set up two-step verification for added security."

"If you receive a suspicious message (even if you think you know who it is from), calling or requesting a voice note is the fastest and simplest way to check someone is who they say they are. A friend in need is a friend worth calling."

Will Smith in an avatar never seen before

Portraying Richard Williams – the father and coach behind the success of tennis superstars Venus & Serena Williams

A father-daughter relationship is a beautiful one. There's nothing like it. It's a sight to see a man caring and loving his little girl and giving her everything she dreams of.

And we all know the famous tennis sisters Venus and Serena Williams. But, what we don't know is the story behind their success – about how they became the tennis stars that they are today.

Warner Bros. upcoming biopic, 'King Richard', tells that story and stars everybody's favourite, Will Smith, in the titular role as a father fighting for his daughters to be the best that they can be, proving the world wrong.

Tennis coach Richard Williams – also the father of Venus and Serena Williams, had a clear vision and a massive 78-page plan to ensure his daughters go down in history.

He trains them in abandoned tennis courts – rain or shine – and the girls are shaped by their father's commitment.

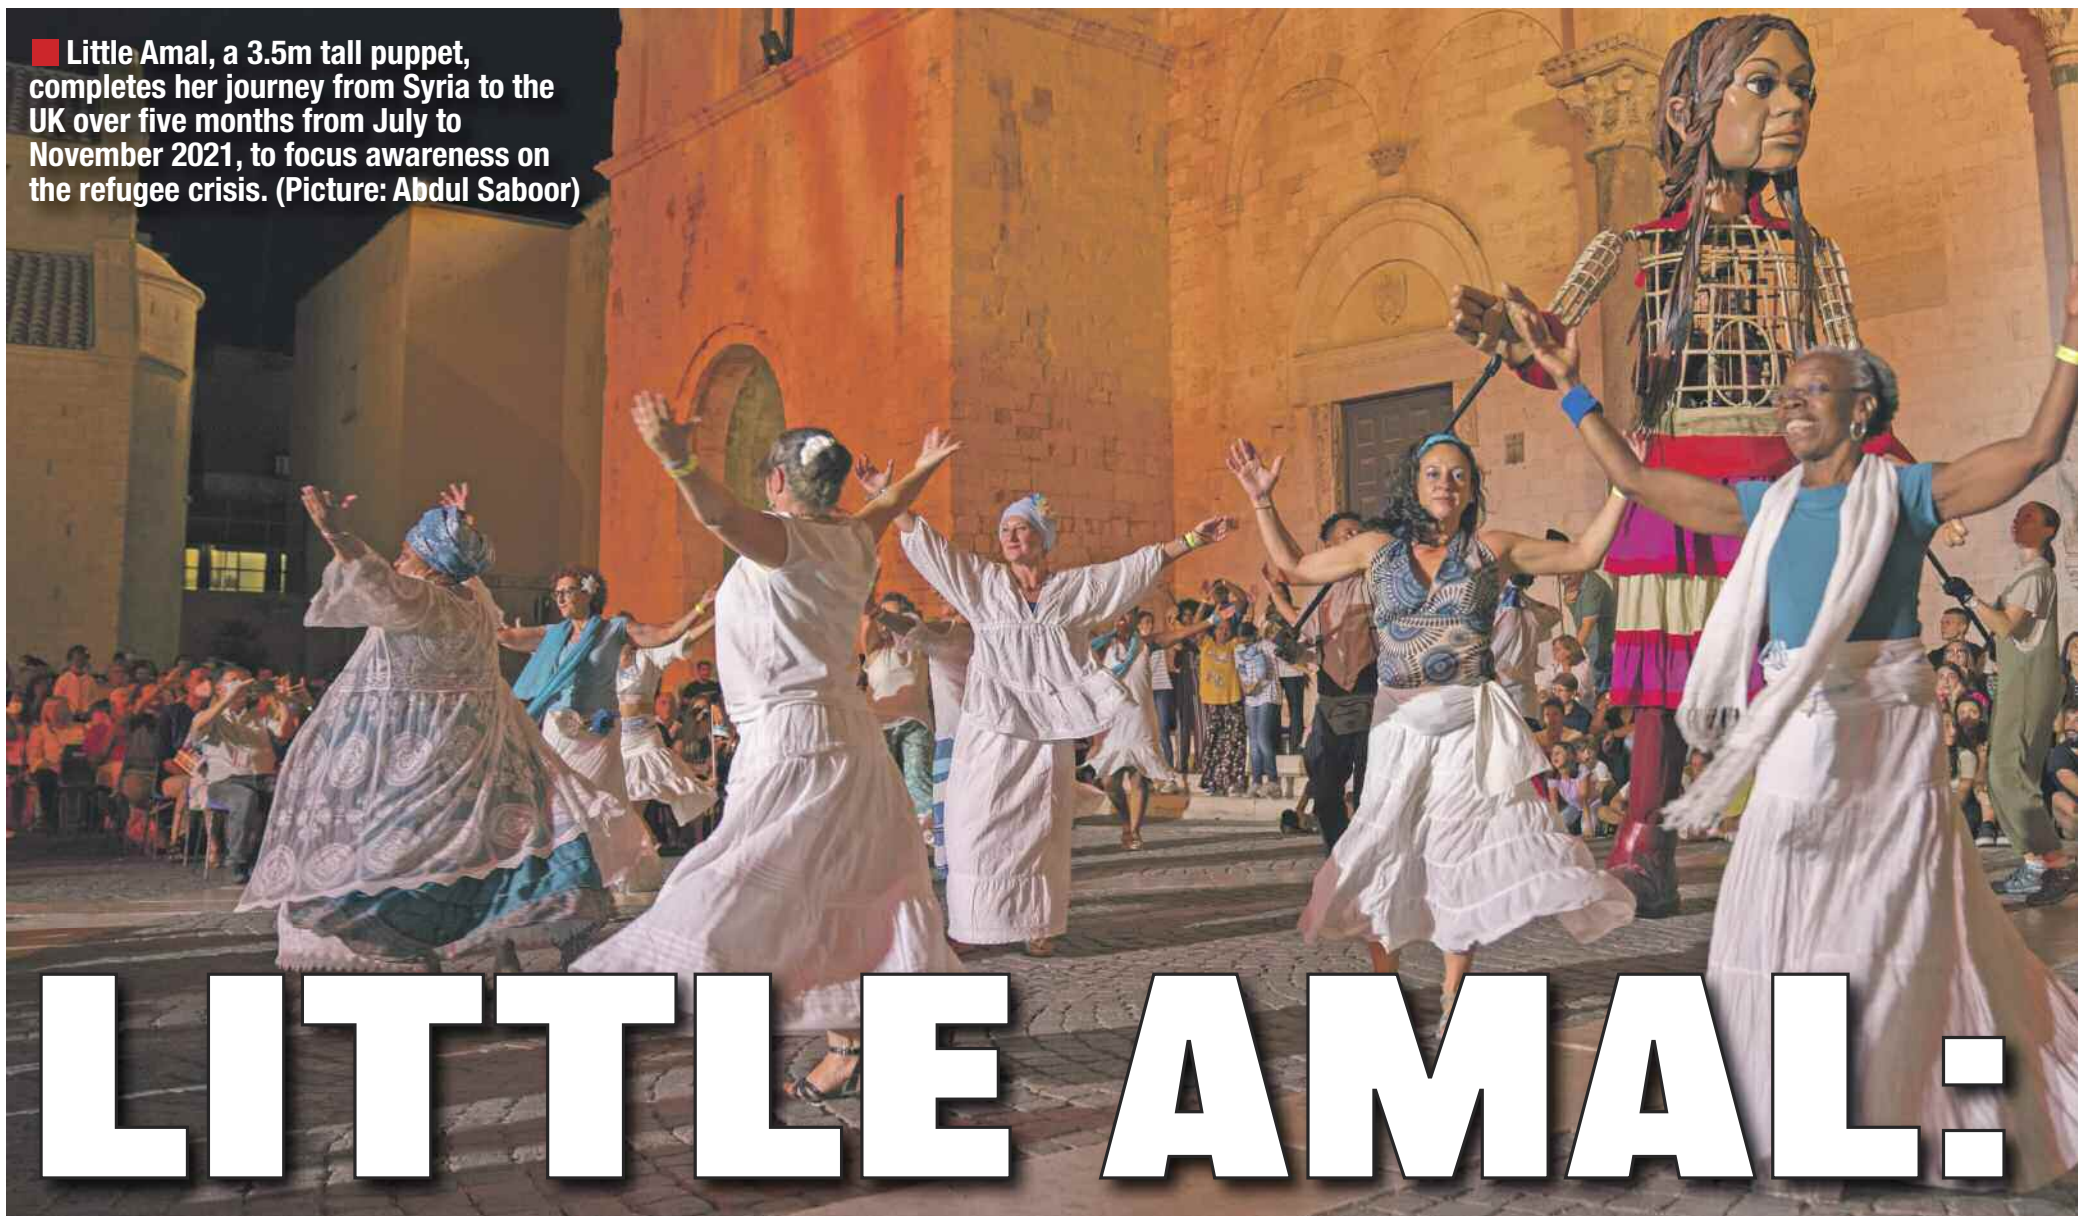

An outspoken and lively character, Williams did whatever he could to prove to the world that his girls were going to be the best of the best and rule the tennis courts.

Directed by Reinaldo Marcus Green, this is a film that you will need to see to believe with Will Smith in an avatar that we've never seen before.

Aunjanue Ellis plays Oracene "Brandy" Williams, Saniyya Sidney stars as Venus Williams, Demi Singleton stars as Serena Williams, with Tony Goldwyn as coach Paul Cohen and Jon Bernthal as coach Rick Macci.

'King Richard' releases in UK cinemas from 19th November 2021.

LITTLE AMAL:

Epic 8000km journey of 9-year-old refugee girl from Turkish-Syrian border culminates in Manchester

The epic 8000km journey of Little Amal, a nine-year-old refugee girl in the form of a 3.5 metre puppet that began in late July at the Turkish-Syrian border comes to a close in Manchester.

Manchester International Festival will stage the finale event of 'The Walk', on Wednesday 3rd November, the culmination of the extraordinary journey from Gaziantep in Turkey to Manchester of a 3.5m tall puppet of a nine-year-old Syrian refugee Little Amal.

Little Amal has travelled from the Syrian border across Turkey, Greece, Italy, France, Switzerland, Germany and Belgium in search of her mother.

In 65 villages, towns and cities she has been welcomed by artists of every kind - dancers, singers, film makers, painters - as well as civil society and faith leaders at the highest level.

Her journey represents those taken by the millions of people who have been violently displaced by war or persecution, especially children. At this time of multiple global crises Amal's urgent message to the world is "Don't forget about us".

'When the Birds Land'

The finale moment of The Walk will be marked with a free large-scale outdoor event, titled 'When the Birds Land', at 7pm on 3rd November in Manchester, a city that has long welcomed its diverse and dynamic population of refugee and migrant communities, and has the highest concentration of dispersed asylum seekers in the UK outside of London.

'When the Birds Land' has been created through collaboration with an advisory group created by MIF, made up of adults who identify as refugees and asylum seekers and their allies, as well as a creative team that includes renowned puppeteer Sarah Wright and led by film and theatre director Simon Stone (The Dig, Yerma).

The openhearted spirit of the city will be displayed with people of all ages and from all areas of Manchester, greeting Little Amal through live music and song, puppetry and dance.

This extensive public art project is produced by Stephen Daldry, David Lan, Tracey Seaward and Naomi Webb for Good Chance, co-producers of the critically-acclaimed The Jungle, in association with Handspring Puppet Company, world-famous creators of the horse puppets in War Horse, and led by Good Chance's Artistic Director Amir Nizar Zuabi.

“Yes, refugees need food and blankets, but they also need dignity and a voice.”

John McGrath, Artistic Director and Chief Executive of Manchester International Festival said: “At Manchester International Festival we have a proud history of creating participatory events that bring the city together.

“As we continue to navigate these uncertain times, the power of arts and projects like these to start important conversations, create connections and safely bring communities together is more important than ever.

“We hope that everyone who calls Greater Manchester their home, will help us welcome Little Amal when she arrives at the end of her long journey.”

Amir Nizar Zuabi, Artistic Director of The Walk stated: “It is because the attention of the world is elsewhere right now that it is more important than ever to reignite the conversation about the refugee crisis and change the narrative around it.

“Yes, refugees need food and blankets, but they also need dignity and a voice.

“The purpose of ‘The Walk’ is to highlight the potential of the refugee, not just their dire circumstances. Little Amal is 3.5 metres tall because we want her to inspire us to think big and to act bigger.”

Simon Stone, Director of ‘The Walk’ added: “It’s the end of Amal’s odyssey. She’s arrived in Manchester. A city with a rich history of immigration, a stunning array of diverse stories, a social fabric that weaves difference and togetherness into one despite its paradoxes.

“It’s the kind of city Amal can rest her weary feet, and know the conflict and struggle that lie behind her have a place to be heard and, hopefully, healed. Amongst her own, amongst strangers. The new adventure begins.”

New Range Rover is the 'most significant' SUV launch of 2021

The fifth-generation luxury SUV takes Land Rover's modernist design philosophy to the next level, with a contemporary interpretation of its trademark profile to create an incredible design statement. It continues to lead, bringing breathtaking modernity, aesthetic grace and sophistication to Land Rover's latest flagship.

With a suite of efficient mild-hybrid and plug-in hybrid powertrains - and a pure-electric Range Rover set to join the line-up in 2024 - plus a choice of four, five or seven-seat interiors available across Standard and Long Wheelbase body designs, the New Range Rover is breathtaking.

Data generated by carwow, the UK's leading car marketplace, suggests that the global reveal of the all-new Range Rover could be one of the most significant new car launches of the year, and certainly the biggest launch of a new SUV.

Despite not being available until 2022, the new model is already having a material commercial impact.

Within 24 hours of the car's online debut on 26 October, more than 2,000 people had configured a current-generation Range Rover via the carwow platform, and more than 200 logged an enquiry with one of carwow's dealer partners. The day after the launch, more than three times the number of Range Rovers were bought via carwow compared to any previous day in October.

In addition, carwow's video review of the all-new Range Rover, presented by Mat Watson, is proving to be one of the company's most popular of the past 12 months, securing over one million views on YouTube within 24 hours of going live.

During its first seven days, the video clocked 2,434,637 YouTube views, equivalent to 228,205 hours (or just over 26 years) of viewing time. During the same period, the second-most viewed piece of video content relating to the all-new Range Rover was the official Land Rover video, which logged 1,551,129 views.

Carwow's Range Rover video is already its fifth most-watched on YouTube this year, and its most-watched SUV review. It is one of three videos released by the company in 2021 to achieve more than one million views within its first 24 hours.

"The sheer volume of viewers tuning in to watch our review of the new Range Rover is testament both to the popularity of the vehicle, and the trust that consumers have in carwow to provide honest and entertaining car-buying advice," explained Sepi Arani, Commercial Director at carwow.

"But when you look at the impact of the launch on buyer activity across the channel, it is clear to see the influence of the Range Rover as a brand halo, pushing a significant number of buyers to configure, enquire and order existing models. It has certainly been one of the most talked about launches, if not the most significant of the year," he adds.

Prof Gerry McGovern OBE, Chief Creative Officer, Jaguar Land Rover, said: "The New Range Rover is a vehicle with a peerless character, from the impeccable restraint of its exterior to the flawless tranquil sanctuary of its cabin.

"Informed by creative intellect and a desire for perfection, it doesn't follow fashion or trend, but by a modernist design philosophy, combined with over 50 years of evolution, it is quite simply the most desirable Range Rover ever created."

Bentley's 21" winter wheel packages

Bentley is launching new winter wheel packages for the upcoming colder season.

Customers who are interested in a fresh new look for their Bentley can choose to prepare their car for winter, with an elegant 21" alloy wheel – bringing new visual appeal to match the enhanced winter performance offered by Bentley's Pirelli winter tyres.

There are four 21" winter wheel packages now available – one for Continental GT, GT Convertible and Flying Spur, one for Continental GT Speed and two for Bentayga.

Through specially developed winter tyres, owners of all models will have the confidence to enjoy the performance of their vehicles during the wintery conditions. Continental GT and GT Convertible owners are now able to select the beautiful twin-10-spoke alloy wheel with a dark grey painted and bright-machined finish for the first time this winter.

The wheel packages provide the simplest method for swapping between summer and winter tyres and helps to prolong tyre wear whilst used in their optimum conditions.

Winter tyres are far more effective than summer tyres in low temperatures (below 7°C / 45°F) and ensure maximum available traction and performance on cold tarmac, snow and ice. Three particular design features of winter tyres make this possible:

Tread Pattern – The tyres have many additional grooves or recesses that help to displace water, but also dig into the snow and ice. The extra edges of the grooves help with providing traction into snow and can snare road debris acting like temporary studs. The tread is visually more open.

Tyre Compound – Winter tyres have a softer compound than a summer tyre containing more silica allowing the blocks to stay soft and supple in colder temperatures. Summer tyres in wintry conditions become more rigid and do not mould to the road surface and therefore provide less grip.

Block and Groove Design – By design, the rubber blocks of winter tyres vibrate whilst driving, shaking out any snow or road debris. The large open grooves allow water to drain and provide good lateral stability. In comparison, the small grooves on summer tyres would become clogged and less effective.

Bentley's Pirelli winter tyres have been designed specifically to ensure that the car achieves as much traction as possible during the cold winter months and provide a comparable experience to driving on a dry and warm day.

Grand Touring In All Seasons

The four new winter wheel packages offer customers piece of mind during the winter months and provides the highest level of performance and safety from their vehicle. Customers who require further information can contact their local retailer for availability.

Vauxhall's all-new Astra goes on sale

Vauxhall has confirmed pricing and specification for its eighth-generation Astra with a choice of powertrains, and for the first time, is available as a highly-efficient Plug-in HYBRID-e version.

The new Vauxhall Astra is a design statement of intent for the brand.

Dynamic as never before, with sheer, taut surfaces, detoxed of superfluous elements and with the new brand face – the Vauxhall Vizor.

Like its predecessor launched in 2015, the newcomer brings innovations to the compact class that customers previously only knew from more expensive vehicles.

For example, the Astra can turn night into day: the latest evolution of the adaptive IntelliLux LED® Pixel light comes straight from Vauxhall's flagship Insignia and, with 168 LED elements, significantly more than direct class rivals, leads the way in the compact and midsize market sectors.

With the fully digital Pure Panel, the new human-machine-interface (HMI) with fresh, modern graphics offers customers a pure, more intuitive experience. Passengers can operate the Astra intuitively via two 10-inch touchscreens, just like a smartphone.

The front seats, developed in-house, are AGR-certified for healthy backs, with their exemplary ergonomics, are exceedingly comfortable, especially on long journeys.

The driver is supported by state-of-the-art assistance systems ranging from the Intelli-HUD head-up display to the semi-automated Intelli-Drive (which includes Rear Cross Traffic Alert, Lane Positioning Assist, Adaptive Cruise, Semi-Autonomous Lane Change and Curve Speed Adaptation, which slows the car down at bends in the road) and the Intelli-Vision 360-degree parking camera.

Customers the choice between petrol and diesel variants and a highly efficient Plug-in Hybrid model, the Astra Plug-in HYBRID-e, from launch.

Electric and efficient Powertrains

From launch, the All-new Astra will be available in the Plug-in HYBRID-e variant which combines Vauxhall's 1.6-litre petrol engine with a 12.4 kWh battery for a combined power output of 180PS, with a more powerful, 225PS Plug-in Hybrid Electric variant to become available later next year.

Both models will be capable of up to 35 miles (WLTP) of electric range – enough to cover 85 per cent of all typical journeys. With emissions as low as 24g/km CO₂, the All-new Astra will be ideal for both fleets and private buyers looking to save on running costs.

Customers can also choose from a line-up of efficient petrol and diesel engines. The All-new Astra is available with a 1.2-litre three-cylinder turbo petrol unit, or a 1.5-litre four cylinder diesel engine, with both variants available with either a six-speed manual or Vauxhall's smooth eight-speed automatic.

Detoxed interior

The All-New Astra continues Vauxhall's new bold and pure design language.

Featuring a 13mm longer wheelbase than the predecessor, the All-New Astra is just 4mm longer than the previous variant, resulting in a short front overhang and a muscular, confident stance.

Inside, Vauxhall has focused on detoxing the interior – making it simple and intuitive to use. Vauxhall's Pure Panel digital interface dominates the interior, with all models from launch featuring a 10-inch driver instrument cluster and a 10-inch digital touchscreen with satellite navigation as standard.

The full glass, edge-to-edge Pure Panel Pro consists of a new Human-Machine Interface (HMI) that helps reduce the need for analogous buttons and makes it easier to access features via the infotainment screen, including smartphone connectivity.

Prices for the All-new Astra range start from £23,275. First deliveries of the All-new Astra will take place early next year.

Yorkshire’s largest Asian bakery group - Regal Foods, announces partnership with Bradford City AFC

Regal Food Products Group Plc have just announced the start of a two-year partnership with Bradford City AFC.

Coming into effect from the 2022/23 season, the partnership will see Regal Foods, and Bradford City AFC join forces in reaching out to the local community. The partnership will deliver on community engagement, as well providing opportunities for the people of Bradford.

Faz Ali, group sales marketing director of Regal Foods Products Group Plc, said: “We are very much looking forward to working with Bradford City AFC on what promises to be an exciting partnership.

“As a Bradford-born family business, partnering with a local football club means we can really build on something great within the Bradford community.”

“Bradford is a special place and, irrespective of Regal’s international status, it will always be our home - and one we are very proud of.”

City’s chief executive officer, Ryan Sparks, said: “We are delighted to be welcoming Regal Foods as a club partner from next year, and are proud to be affiliated with another huge Bradford brand.

“A lot of credit must go to Davide Longo and his team for delivering yet another exciting and strategic partnership which, in my view, will become a game changer for our football club.

“Regal Foods has grown exponentially since forming 20 years ago, now not only being a popular, well-known food provider in Bradford, but also across the United Kingdom and beyond.

“This partnership will help us continue our ongoing community work alongside Regal, and we are looking forward to announcing further elements of it over the coming months.

“I would like to take this opportunity to thank Faz Ali - who I have already built up a strong relationship with, and cannot wait to work more closely with over the course of the coming years.”

Azeem Rafiq praised for whistleblowing about racism at YCCC

“There were catastrophic failings of governance over many years at Yorkshire County Cricket Club, that is why it's right the chairman resigned.”

Watershed moment for cricket

“There were catastrophic failings of governance over many years at Yorkshire County Cricket Club, that is why it's right the chairman [Roger Hutton] resigned, and I think if there is anybody left from that regime they should resign as well.”

Philp also said any investigation must be public in order to allow the country and Parliament to “fully scrutinise them” and to “restore the public's belief” in the sport.

“The conduct of Yorkshire Cricket Club in this matter, by trying to brush it under the carpet and ignore it, is completely unacceptable,” he said.

“The conduct of the cricket club has no justification whatsoever, it is disgraceful, and we unreservedly condemn it.

“Where players are found to have committed acts of racism they should suffer consequences.”

New club Chairman, Lord Patel, has committed to the creation of an independent reporting process which will assure future whistle-blowers of anonymity.

He thanked Rafiq for “his bravery in speaking out” and condemned any justification for racism, disguised as ‘banter’.

He added: “We need to listen to anyone who has experienced racism, discrimination and abuse at this cricket club, and I urge others to come forward to share their experiences.

“We are aware that a number of allegations have been made from individuals about their experiences in the media. These need to be properly investigated.

“I announced that an independent whistleblowing hotline will be set up as quickly as possible, as a safe space for people to come forward with disclosures.

“Once it is operational – and I have asked for this to happen by the end of this week – this will be the first step to a new and dedicated process to receive and to respond directly to all allegations and concerns.”

Azeem's legal battle

When Asma Iqbal, Partner at Chadwick Lawrence, saw Rafiq's TV interview where he detailed his experiences at Yorkshire, she immediately empathised with his position and reached out to him.

Hearing the accounts of racism directed at Rafiq and his unsuccessful efforts to report it through the channels at YCCC, Asma offered the support of the legal team at Chadwick Lawrence.

Before the internal investigation was announced, an attempt was made to engage with, then YCCC Chairman, Roger Hutton.

After gathering detailed evidence of discrimination, Asma instructed barristers, Jennifer Robinson, Paras Gorasia and Margherita Cornaglia at Doughty Street Chambers to assist in representing Rafiq in his claim for redress.

The team collated irrefutable evidence of systemic racism at YCCC and challenged the processes that failed to scrutinise or counteract claims of unfairness. Indeed, an internal investigation at YCCC had not satisfied the Digital, Culture, Media & Sport select committee, leading to a full disclosure request and pressure from sponsors and MPs to publish an unredacted report.

With the resignation of Roger Hutton and others from YCCC, and the report now being released to parties with a legal interest, ahead of a parliamentary enquiry on November 16th, Asma feels that her client has been vindicated.

Rafiq has spoken openly about the impact his experiences at YCCC has had on his mental well-being, urging others to step forward and speak up against institutionalised racism in sport or any other place.

The legal outcome also ensures that Azeem can speak candidly at the parliamentary enquiry, which is important in bringing about closure while allowing him to share his story.

Asma Iqbal says: “This case was never about damaging YCCC but about securing a meaningful change of culture at the club and eradicating racism at all levels.

“I'm hopeful that Lord Patel will uphold his promise to bring about significant changes. It has been my pleasure to work with Azeem Rafiq, his courage in speaking out is inspirational and I hope others will share his platform for change.

“Whilst this was somewhat of a personal undertaking for me, I'm grateful for the support of my colleagues and the team at Doughty Street Chambers in bringing about a satisfactory conclusion for Azeem.”

The legal dispute between former Yorkshire cricketer, Azeem Rafiq and Yorkshire County Cricket Club (YCCC) has been settled without a non-disclosure agreement, with Rafiq receiving unreserved apologies.

Rafiq had opened up about his experiences at YCCC for the first time in September 2020, which he said left the him close to taking his own life.

He exposed that he was subject to racism at Yorkshire CCC, including jibes and being called ‘Paki’ and ‘Raffa the kaffir’. He played between 2008 and 2018.

His claim included expressly racist “dressing room banter”, where non-white players were often addressed as “Paki” and “elephant washers”, and being told to “go back where you came from”. He says YCCC repeatedly ignored his concerns about racism and victimisation.

In September 2021, a year after the former player went public with his allegations, Yorkshire released its own summary findings of a report by an independent panel, which found that Rafiq was a victim of “racial harassment and bullying”, but YCCC subsequently said no-one would be disciplined.

Now Sport and culture minister Chris Philp said that the UK government is ready to “step in” if Yorkshire and the ECB do not take “real action” following the Azeem Rafiq racism scandal.

“Parliament is watching, the government is watching and the country is watching,” he said.

“We expect real action and the government stands ready to step in and take action if they do not put their own house in order.”

SCENT SALIM

FINE ARABIAN SCENTS

Scent Salim was established in 2007 and has been catering to the perfumery needs of all around the globe since.

The retail store in Leeds, United Kingdom opened in May 2014.

Its creations after creations have adored the exotic, the romantic, the introvert & the contemporary in many ways than one. Naturally, from a perfumery that indulges in psychology, the world can look forward to perfumes with distinctive personality.

We now have thousands of customers in over 50 countries and we supply to both trade and individuals. Our inventory now contains over 1,000 fragrances and over 100 Oud products. Please contact us for more information about Scent Salim.

Ilyas Salim the founder of Scent Salim had a passion for Oud and Scents from an early age; from the age of eight he started collecting scents and attars. Since changing his passion into a business, Scent Salim has had remarkable praises from global super stars and many experts in the field of perfume and Oud. Salim and his team have travelled to many countries to bring the UK and the international market the best scents.

The Goals and objectives are to be a brand leader in niche Oud and Scents.

To create niche perfumes and innovate the industry.

To educate people about the Scent industry.

Bringing unique Arabian Oud blends to the UK market.

The Oud and Scents industry recognises the unique needs for individual customers and churns out a variety of niche products, including Oud blends, perfumes, deodorants, home fragrance, personalised scent gifts, Arabian perfumes. Since not all products will work for everyone, Scent Salim's ideas and business attempt to solve people's problems. We have introduced long lasting scents. Customers seek a variety, so part of the industry's objective is to offer a product range in each niche to fit various clients' needs.
